Mellon Denies Report That He Has Resigned

Denial Also Issued Of Report Dawes Quits As Ambassador

CAPITAL PAPER SPREADS REPORTS

Mellon Makes Official Denial Of Story In Reaching Office.

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Published reports that Andrew W. Mellon has resigned as secretary of the treasury, effective March 4, and that he is to be succeeded by Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker, were unqualifiedly denied at the White House today.

Mellon has not resigned, it was stated, and if he has any intention of so doing he has not acquainted the White House of it.

A similar denial was made that Charles G. Dawes is shortly to retire as Ambassador to Great Britain in order to take over the national affairs of the Republican national committee.

Secretary Mellon added his denial as soon as he reached his office.

"There is no truth to the rumor," he said. "The story is without any foundation whatever."

The state department also issued a denial that Ambassador Dawes was resigning.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Washington Herald today printed the following copyrighted article:

"Andrew W. Mellon has submitted his resignation as secretary of the treasury, but announcement of its acceptance will not be made until after congress adjourns March 4."

"His successor, it is understood, will be Henry M. Robinson, banker, of Pasadena, Calif., intimate friend of the president."

"This information was obtained by the Washington Herald last night from sources close to the administration."

"At the same time it was learned that Charles G. Dawes soon will relinquish his duties as ambassador to the court of St. James and come home to accept the chairmanship of the Republican national committee."

"Dawes will be succeeded in London by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams."

"The post of secretary to the president, recently vacated by George Akerson, according to latest information, is to be filled by Raymond Benjamin of Vallejo, Calif., another personal friend of Mr. Hoover's who has been in Washington for the past few weeks."

The article further stated that about three months after the expiration of the present congress, President Hoover plans to call a special session of the new 72nd congress "to do something effective to end the depression here and abroad."

PA NEW OBSERVES

There was a feeling of spring in the air this morning, quite different from the snappiness of the past few mornings.

Wrecking equipment of some large auto wrecking concern passed through the city yesterday—carrying three large automobiles probably bound for the scrap pile.

Just a year ago, preparations were being made to leave for Arizona to bring back Irene Schroeder and Glen Dague, who were captured on the 14th of January, after a nationwide man hunt. Now they are making preparations for their last stand to save themselves from the electric chair.

Cans were collected this morning on East North street. The can truck doesn't need to toot a horn for people to know that it is there. The rattle bang of the cans is noticeable enough.

Daily Weather Report

U. S. weather bureau statistics for the 24 hour period ending at nine o'clock this morning follow:
Maximum temperature, 37.
Minimum temperature, 23.
No precipitation.
River stage, 42 feet, falling.

Gets Freedom

FRANK HOWELL

After having served 15 months in the penitentiary for a crime that was committed in West Virginia by Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, Frank Howell was liberated on a pardon issued by the governor. Howell left the prison on Thursday afternoon and returned to his home in New Martinsville. There is considerable discussion in West Virginia of a move to provide a special state measure to compensate him for the time he spent in the state penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va.

Arrest Gibson At Campbell, O. Friday Evening

Former Attorney Demands Extradition Papers To Bring Him Here

HELD AT YOUNGSTOWN AWAITING ACTION

Specific Charge Against Him Is Embezzlement Of $1700 Fund

Attorney Clyde Gibson, former member of the Lawrence county bar, was arrested in Campbell, O., last night on a charge of embezzling by agent. Gibson is now in the Mahoning county jail where he will remain until requisition papers are secured, when he will be brought to the Lawrence county jail.

Gibson was indicted by a Lawrence county grand jury on March 6, 1930, on a charge of embezzling $1700 from Elizabeth Spence, who had entrusted the money to him for investment. At the time the indictment was returned Gibson was a fugitive from justice.

A process was issued for him which was placed in the hands of Sheriff Frank N. Johnston. For some time after his disappearance, his whereabouts were unknown. He was reported in Washington immediately after his disappearance from this city.

His family moved to the vicinity of Youngstown, Ohio. Recently it was learned that Gibson had come to Campbell, O., where it is said that he has been working. He was recognized by a man who saw him in a pool room in Campbell.

The man informed Campbell officials and they in turn called Sheriff Johnston.

State Farm Show To Open Monday

Last Minute Preparations Being Made For Fifteenth Annual State Farm Show

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—Last minute preparations were being made here today for the opening of the fifteenth annual State Farm show, in the new State Farm Show building which will be dedicated by Gov. John S. Fisher Monday night. Between 25,000 and 30,000 persons will visit the new building and exhibition Monday, the opening day, it was estimated by R. G. Bressler, deputy secretary of agriculture and director of the exposition.

A total attendance of 150,000 for the week was forecast by Bressler, who said there is more interest in the show this year than ever before.

Commercial and agricultural exhibits will pack the building and state departments will disclose their activities through displays.

The exposition will open Monday, to continue through until Friday. There will be judging every day, with most of the sales scheduled for the last day of the show.

Features of the week include a state championship horse shoe pitching tournament, a dramatics tournament and vocational school demonstrations.

Wet President Will Never Get Election In U. S.

Head Of Methodist Temperance Board Discusses Prohibition Situation

WARNS AUDIENCE OF PROPAGANDISTS

Large Crowd Attends Meeting At First Baptist Church Friday Night

"Never will there be a wet president elected by this dry and Christian nation of ours," declared Dr. Clarence True Wilson, chairman of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist churches of Washington D. C., as he addressed a well filled auditorium in the First Baptist church Friday evening.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. E. A. Crooks, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church of this city and member of the reform committee of the New Castle Ministerial Association. The opening of the service was with a hymn, sung by the audience, followed by a prayer, led by Dr. H. C. Weaver, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The church choir sang a beautiful anthem after which Dr. Crooks introduced Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand of the Lawrence County court, who in turn introduced Dr. Wilson as an outstanding defender and champion of prohibition, respected alike by friend and foe throughout the country.

Dr. Wilson Spoke
"The Prohibition Outlook" was the theme of the address but Dr. Wilson said instead of reviewing the great progress made during the eleven years of prohibition, he would talk specifically on what had been done during the past year. He revealed what the prohibitionists were up against and the difficulties that have yet to be overcome.

His address had to deal with some of the facts of opposition which were not published through the press of the nation.

Dr. Wilson Said In Part

First, the wets have a chairman of the judiciary committee of the House, though the committee is overwhelmingly dry. Chairman Graham called at the Board office in Washington six months ago and the wets did their best to furnish prominent people their astounding objections.

Mexican Towns Appeal For Aid

Disastrous Quake Of Wednesday Took Toll Of 51 Lives—New Shock Is Felt

FEAR IS SPREADING THROUGHOUT MEXICO

(International News Service)
MEXICO CITY, Jan. 17.—Fears of recurrent earth shocks gripped Mexico today following yesterday's temblor of one minute, which lasted nearly as long as Wednesday's disastrous quake with its death toll of 51.

The national observatory here stated that one intense movement and 13 minor ones have been recorded since Wednesday night, with the epicenter of at least one of them somewhere in Guatemala.

Further urgent appeals for relief aid have been received from the ruined city of Oaxaca, where almost all houses were destroyed with the consequent fatalities and a great number of injured. Surrounding villages were reported also to have suffered heavily.

Unconfirmed dispatches stated that a church collapsed in the village of Guetolva, state of Oaxaca during services, killing the priest and injuring a score of worshippers. A train approaching Mexico City was believed to have been derailed because of wreckage having been moved by the earthquake.

WILL ROGERS says:

(Special To The News)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Had a long talk with the president Friday. He sincerely feels (with almost emotion) that it would set a bad precedent for the government to appropriate money for the Red Cross.

He feels that once the government relieves the people, they will always expect it, and you have broken down the real spirit of American generosity and spoiled all that our great American Red Cross has worked years to achieve.

Talked to Mr. Barton Payne, and all the head directors of the organization who were in conference at that time, and they felt the same way.

Now, today, in the senate they will pass Senator Robinson's $25,000,000 humanitarian appropriation bill. In the house there will be a fight over it. Now if we really want to see somebody helped, we better go ahead and raise our various quotas on what they asked for.

Even if this other passes, it will be too late to save the fellow who is hungry now. No matter what the politicians do, whether it's called a "dole" or a "gift," you can't live on these speeches they are going to make about it.

Oratory is an organic exercise, but a digestive failure. Personally, I think we can use both funds (the ten and the twenty-five) and not give our needy the gout.

Yours,

Will Rogers

Pedestrian Is Hurt By Auto

William Lloyd Is Victim Of Peculiar Accident This Morning

COLLISION OCCURS AT STREET CORNER

Driver, In Moving Car From Accident Scene Strikes Man

William Lloyd, aged 56, of 1202 Wilmington avenue, was struck and apparently seriously injured this morning, at North Jefferson street and Grant street, as he stood on the sidewalk, by the automobile of Al Leshner, 102 Grand River, Detroit, Michigan.

He is in the Jameson Memorial hospital, suffering from injuries of the left arm, both sides and the shock. An X-Ray picture was taken this afternoon to determine the full extent of his injuries, as his condition indicated more serious injuries than could be determined in the first examination following his arrival at the hospital.

Al Leshner, driver of the car that struck Mr. Lloyd is being held in the county jail on a technical charge of reckless driving made before Alderman William E. Marshall at the direction of District Attorney John S. Powers. His car has been attached by action of members of the Lloyd family and John P. Brinton. His brother Leo, who was accompanied him, was also injured.

Probe Wrecking Of Hudson Tube Train

Nineteen Persons Injured As Tube Train Crashes Into Wall; Three Cars Damaged

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A mistaken signal or a faulty switch was blamed today by investigators after a preliminary probe for the Hudson tube train derailment, which yesterday brought injury to 19 persons. The train crashed into a wall. Three cars were telescoped and three others filled with shattered glass.

There were 500 passengers on the train. The switch at a point in the entrance of the New York terminal was working improperly, investigators said, and the signal maintainer motioned the train to move ahead by hand. He denied he had touched the switch after the train started.

McSparran Named To Cabinet Post By Pinchot Today

John A. McSparran, Democrat, Becomes Secretary Of Agriculture

COMES OF PIONEER FARMING FAMILY

Seven Posts In New In-Cabinet Cabinet Are Yet To Be Filled By Pinchot

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—A Democrat today holds a post in the Republican cabinet of a Republican governor.

The Democrat is John A. McSparran, of Lancaster county, who last evening was named secretary of agriculture in the new cabinet by Governor-elect Gifford Pinchot, after a conference which followed his return to the capital from Philadelphia.

McSparran, a farmer and for ten years master of the state grange, was one of the state Democratic leaders who bolted their party in the last campaign because of its stand on the prohibition issue. A lifelong dry, McSparran took the stump for Pinchot and worked for his election.

Maintains Stand.

"I still stand where I stood eight years ago," said McSparran, discussing his appointment as a Democratic member of a Republican cabinet. "The Democratic party has shifted, not I."

"With very keen pleasure I announce that John A. McSparran has accepted the post of secretary of agriculture in the Pinchot administration," said the governor-elect in making known the appointment. "Mr. McSparran and I were members of a little group which founded the national board of farm organizations and we worked together for the advancement of Pennsylvania farmers for many years."

He is intimately familiar with the farm problems in every part of the commonwealth and no other man in Pennsylvania has a comparable record of leadership in the state grange."

When he was first asked to accept a place in the Pinchot cabinet, McSparran declined on the grounds that he was not a member of the incoming governor's party, the governor-elect revealed.

But when I pointed out to him that a Democrat had sat in Roosevelt's cabinet, and after he had consulted his friends, I was exceedingly surprised.

Hold Sanders In Roux Robbery

Hearing Given Prisoner Brought Here From Youngstown

SANDERS IS HELD FOR COURT TRIAL

John Sanders, alias John Sankert, of Youngstown, was held for the March term of county court following a hearing in Alderman W. E. Marshall's court Friday afternoon about his alleged connection with the holdup and robbery of the J. B. feed and coal store in New Wilmington on December 13.

C. J. Klumph, Beachwood Drive, New Wilmington, part owner and manager of the Roux store, who was tied with his son and a customer, and robbed of all available cash in the place, was a witness at the hearing. District Attorney John S. Powers had brought Byler, Amish farmer who was victimized by the robbers but did not ask him for his version of the robbery.

Unlike Francis Desmont, also of Youngstown, who is now in the county jail awaiting trial on a plea of not guilty of participation in the store holdup, Sanders was represented at the hearing by an attorney. Defense counsel did not place the bandit suspect on the stand and the county's witness, Klumph, was the only one heard.

Klumph declared he positively identified Sanders at a recent "standup" in Youngstown, as the drunken member of the holdup quartet. Klumph said Sanders had brought fear to victims of the robbery due to the careless manner which he handled his gun at the time. It was Sanders, too, Klumph declared, who had knocked him down in the store, and it was Sanders who had pulled off the store manager's glasses during the height of the excitement.

The store manager testified that the exact amount of money taken was finally estimated at exactly $162.43. Previously he said the

The morning session was featured by addresses by State Senator George T. Weingartner, Representative William McElwee, and County Solicitor John P. Lockhart.

The session was opened with a few remarks by the President, Milo Paden, of Mahoning township, after which County Solicitor John P. Lockhart, gave a short address on "The Auditor and His Duties."

Outlines Progress
State Senator Weingartner gave a brief resume of what has been accomplished by the state and county in building roads during the past, stating that approximately 25 miles of road have been built in the county during the past two years, with only eleven miles of dirt road remaining on the state system in the county.

He stated that Governor Pinchot has expressed his intention of adding 20,000 miles to the state road system throughout the state, which would result in approximately 200 miles of road.

Bill With $25,000,000 Relief For Red Cross Work To Reach Hoover

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—President Hoover has been confronted with a number of awkward situations in his conflicts with a rebellious Congress, but none of them has been more acute than that which faced him today in the $25,000,000 relief fund which, despite his objections, has been tacked on the Interior Department appropriation bill.

The $25,000,000 fund takes the place of the $15,000,000 appropriation for food purchases in the drought regions, which he successfully opposed last week. In its new form it is triply embarrassing, for if he scratches it he literally invites a special session of the 72nd congress which he is extremely anxious to avoid.

Highly Incensed.

Those who have talked with Mr. Hoover about it have come away from the White House and reported he is highly incensed over the situation. He has intimated that he will veto the interior bill in order to kill the $25,000,000 item, irrespective of the consequences. He has not, however, committed himself definitely on this point.

Passage of the appropriation bill with the $25,000,000 rider attached is regarded as assured. Even by administration supporters in congress. So overwhelmingly is it supported in the senate that it can pass without the formality of a roll call, and it was predicted today that even the

Chicago Police Commence Rigid Hunt For Slayer

Youthful Slayer Of Woman In Garage Is Being Hunted—Two More Women Attacked

YOUNG SUSPECT TO BE RELEASED

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Search for the youthful stranger who murdered Miss Eppie Moss in a private garage here was intensified today when police learned that since the murder the killer has robbed three women victims close to the scene of the crime.

A youth answering in every detail the description of the murderer leaped from an alleyway and robbed Mrs. Beatrice Gillman, 46. He seized her purse and fled. The woman described him as wearing a leather jacket which had been torn and scratched.

The murderer of Miss Moss tore his clothing when he leaped from a small garage window and fled at the approach of three friends of the strangled woman. Two other victims were robbed by a youth resembling the killer. They were Miss Juliette Pees and M. H. Sangor.

Miss Moss' body was found with an eight foot length of rope tightly wound about the throat. Robbery apparently had not been the motive for her pocketbook was untouched. One suspect a youth of 22, was being held today, but police said they were almost convinced he had no part in the crime.

Detectives studying the past life of the murdered woman disclosed that although she had used the term "Mrs." she had never been married according to her father, Dr. M. P. Moss of Roanoke, Va. Police also exhibited an interest in her attire when it was noted that she often wore masculine apparel with her hair close-cropped or man-fashion.

glad to have him reconsider and accept," Pinchot said.

Pioneer Agriculturist.
The new secretary of agriculture is 36 years old, a third-generation member of a family long prominent in agricultural affairs of Lancaster county.

Seven posts remained today to be filled by the governor-elect and it was expected more cabinet appointments would be forthcoming during the day. Appointment of McSparran was taken as a definite indication, by the political posters, that Dr. Theodore E. Appel, Lancaster, would not be retained as secretary of health, based on a belief that Lancaster county would not be given two cabinet posts.

The names of Dr. Arthur C. Morgan, Philadelphia physician, and Dr. Mary Wolfe, head of the Laurelton State village for feeble-minded women, were prominently mentioned for the job.

Rumor had it also today that Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former Philadelphia public safety director and Marine Corps officer, would be given the post of superintendent of state police, succeeding Maj. Lynn G. Adams, but how true the report was could not be determined.

You're the JUDGE

William Stipes and James Stipes were cousins. Through the death of their grandmother each came into possession of a tract which the other desired to have. Following some negotiations, William agreed to sell his tract to James for $10,000. James deposited that amount in a specified bank within 60 days after the date of the agreement. The bank was to transfer the $10,000 to William upon a presentation of a warranty deed for the land.

Before the 60 days had expired William gave possession of the premises to James, agreed to waive the matter of depositing the money, and the two further agreed to meet on a certain date two weeks hence to close the deal. One day it was discovered that the title held by the younger man was defective, and so they determined to meet another day. When that meeting came around James offered to turn the money over to William for a deed to the land, but William suddenly raised his price to $16,000. This irritated James. He warned William that the price he now was asking was different from that in the agreement and was in effect a breach of the agreement. But William only smiled and answered that the agreement was already broken by the fact that James had failed to deposit the money in the bank. James reminded William that William had waived that detail. William admitted this, but he also insisted on the higher price. James sued.

detainees to plague the administration in the senate. The Nye campaign fund committee, armed with another $50,000, was probing further into the last Pennsylvania primary with its chairman, Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota, announcing an intent to ask the senate to unseat Senator James J. Davis. While certain of defeat, the Nye move would consume valuable time and could not be sidetracked since it becomes a question of the highest privilege.

The Nye committee also had new authority to investigate violations of the corrupt practices act in the 1928 presidential election. Many senators believed this authority, proposed by Senator Glass (D) of Virginia, was aimed at Bishop James Connelley, Jr., of the Methodist church south, who championed President Hoover in the south. It may lead to an embarrassing situation for the administration.

The power controversy remained alive too, even though the power commission restored William V. King, accountant, whose dismissal in December partially led to the resignation of three commission nominations. A group of senators planned to carry the fight against the commissioners further, a plan that will furnish more embarrassment for the administration.

ARREST GIBSON AT CAMPBELL, O. FRIDAY EVENING

iff Frank Johnston to learn if Gibson was wanted. On receiving information that he was an officer at Campbell placed him under arrest.

In the meantime Sheriff Frank Johnston, Deputy Sheriff Russell McBride and State Policeman Anthony Richards had started to Campbell. Upon their arrival there they identified Gibson who was in the Campbell jail.

Asks for Rights

Sheriff Johnston asked Gibson if he was willing to return to Pennsylvania without requisition papers. He replied that he was not, but that he would insist on his rights. Sheriff Johnston then took Gibson to the Mahoning county jail, and upon his return to New Castle informed District Attorney John Powers, who is getting out requisition papers. The papers will have to go to Harrisburg and then to Columbus, O. and if the requisition is granted, which it is presumed it will be, Gibson will be brought back to New Castle to stand trial.

Sheriff Johnston did very little talking to Gibson as the latter did not appear to want to answer questions. From information which Sheriff Johnston secured, it is indicated that Gibson has been working in one of the plants at Campbell, O.

Following Gibson's flight from New Castle the Lawrence county, bar made an investigation of charges that he had been guilty of unethical practices and had converted to his own use large sums of money, given to him by clients to invest. A committee of the bar association appointed by Judge R. L. Hildebrand, found that the charges were true and made a recommendation that Gibson be disbarred. The court issued a disbarment order on this recommendation.

Large Shortage
According to the report made by the bar association committee Gibson had failed to make an accounting to numerous clients who had entrusted their money to him to place on mortgages. The exact total was not named in the report, but estimates of Gibson's shortages place the sum between $50,000 and $70,000.

Previous to the discoveries which led to Gibson's flight and disbarment, he had always been considered a reputable member of the Lawrence county bar. He had a good practice and many friends who had placed the utmost confidence in him. So much so, in fact, that they had turned large sums of money over to him to place, for them, on mortgages. In some instances he did the collecting of interest on mortgages which he had actually placed. Some time before the developments that led to Gibson's flight he had become involved in a financial straits. At this time friends went to his rescue, advancing money for him to place on the mortgage on his residence on the north hill. It was believed by his friends that he would be more careful in the future and with his lucrative practice be able to recover his losses, some of which had been in connection with coal and oil.

However, in place of putting himself on a sound footing in a legitimate way, Gibson appears to have used the money of clients.

Those who were intimate with his affairs were startled when it became known how deeply he was involved. They knew that he always lived well and never appeared to make any efforts to curtail expenses, but even with that, they could not understand how he had used up all the money alleged in the shortages.

The charge upon which Gibson was indicted is the only one so far made. There are many others who can bring similar charges. It is not known what they may do in the matter until Gibson is brought back. His residence on Fairfield avenue, upon which his friends had advanced money during his first financial difficulties, was sold this week at substantial losses to those who had befriended him.

Collision Occurs
The injury sustained by Mr. Lloyd followed a collision between the cars of Leshner and John P. Brinton, who was driving a car of the American Oil Company of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Brinton was enroute north on North Jefferson street and in the act of making a left hand turn onto West Grant street, as he saw the car driven by Leshner coming east on Grant street.

According to the report of Mr. Brinton, Leshner car did not stop at the stop sign and kept on across the street intersection of Jefferson street. Mr. Brinton saw this and stopped his machine before actually making the turn and the Leshner car came right on and crashed into his car, damaging it considerably, and then went up on the sidewalk at the northwest corner of Grant and Jefferson streets.

Leshner had gotten out of his machine following the accident, then got into his machine to start it and it was in getting off the sidewalk that he struck Mr. Lloyd, seriously injuring him. Mr. Lloyd was rushed to the Jameson hospital.

According to the report at the police station, Leshner was directed to get his machine off the sidewalk. He started his machine, but apparently due to some damage to his steering apparatus, he could not back the machine but had to move it forward and it was as he did so, that Mr. Lloyd was struck and injured.

With the jailing of Sanders two more are still sought for participation in the Roux store holdup. All three Sanders, Desmond and Raniola are reported by county authorities to have been identified by the store manager. ### PANAMA INSTALLS ALFARO PRESIDENT of pomp and the usual grand flourishes that mark inaugurations, Senor Alfaro took the oath of office before the supreme court. He appeared in the tiny chamber of justice at 4 p. m.

Several thousand people waited in a plaza outside while the chief justice transferred the presidential band of blue and white silk with the republic's seal from the shoulders of Provisional President Arias to those of the new executive. Then both stepped outside to receive the ovation of the crowd.

Senor Alfaro took the oath of office just 11 hours after landing at Colon following his trip from the United States to assume the presidency in place of Florencio Arce, who was ousted by the revolution of January 2.

CONGRESS PLACES PRESIDENT HOOVER IN REAL DILEMMA

boss-ridden house will not dare reject it in view of the distress tales pouring into the capital from the states affected by drought conditions.

Money Badly Needed.
Tacking the $25,000,000 on the interior appropriation bill was an ingenious move on the part of those who disagree with Mr. Hoover. If a special session is to be avoided, the great supply bills must be enacted before March 4. The failure of even one of them will leave the department affected without funds with which to operate after June 30 next. Hence the only way to avoid the special session is to enact them all prior to March 4. A veto would have the same effect as the failure to enact one of them.

There is another angle to the situation that is reported to have incensed the president exceedingly.

As a result of the long and acrimonious debate over whether congress should appropriate from the federal treasury to relieve distress conditions in the drought regions, the public generally has apparently come to the conclusion that congress is going to take care of the situation, and consequently there has been very little response to the presidential appeal for $10,000,000 for the American Red Cross.

Returns Are Slow.
The appeal to the public to contribute $10,000,000 "promptly and generously" to the Red Cross for relief of human suffering was candidly admitted today to have been—thus far, at any rate—a dud. The money has not been coming in.

Instead of making up their allotted quotas, some cities have telegraphed their representatives in congress that they have their hands full in taking care of their own unemployment and distress conditions, and that if the hungry farmers in Arkansas are to be fed it is up to congress to do it.

There is still time, of course, for the public response to the president's proclamation to prove effective, but there was not much optimism around Red Cross headquarters in administration circles today over the prospects. Rather bitterly, it was stated that congress, by its debate, had impressed the country with the theory that it was incumbent upon the federal treasury, rather than upon the public, to take care of the situation. And judging from the public's response to Mr. Hoover's proclamation, it appeared today the public is quite willing to let the treasury do it.

Severely Criticized.
The frank criticism of the Red Cross by some members of congress has not helped the situation, either. Critics of Mr. Hoover's policy have pointed out in public debate that only ten days ago Judge John Branton Payne, national director of the Red Cross, assured a senate committee that his organization was amply equipped to take care of the situation with its present funds. This testimony was offered at the moment that those who had fought for the $15,000,000 federal appropriation, defeat the $15,000,000 appropriation.

A week later, after the appropriation was beaten, Judge Payne joined with Mr. Hoover in appealing for $10,000,000, characterizing the situation as "one of the greatest emergencies" the country has ever faced. "I don't fault the Red Cross," he said, "but it did not sit well with those who had fought for the $15,000,000 federal appropriation. In fact, it infuriated them. Senator Thomas (D) of Oklahoma, for example, immediately dug up and broadcast the Red Cross' latest financial statement, showing total resources of more than $30,000,000.

At all events, the public response to the appeal of Mr. Hoover, and Judge Payne for $10,000,000 has been very lagard, and the president's dilemma has increased proportionately because of it.

If he accepts the $25,000,000 appropriation now attached to the interior bill, it will be at the cost of swallowing what he has hitherto denounced. If he doesn't, he invites a special session of the 72nd congress, which he doesn't want. It is an awkward situation, at best.

Arguments Made In Dispute Over Alley

Arguments were heard before Judge R. L. Hildebrand this morning in the case of E. E. Lindsey against Estelle Brown. The case is one growing out of a dispute over the lines of an alley, connecting Walnut and Whippo streets, between County Line and Chestnut streets. Plaintiff claims that defendant encroached on the alley while defendant maintains the opposite. Judge Hildebrand will hand down his decision later.

BOOSTER MEETING PROVES SUCCESS

Friday evening was the occasion of a fine gathering of the members of the Young Men's Bible Class of the First Congregational church. This was the first monthly meeting held in the church dining room, other meetings having been held in the homes of members.

About forty persons were present, including the speaker of the evening, Attorney Walter S. Reynolds and several invited guests. Out of town guests of the occasion were Rev. S. Cobb and George Thomas of the Harmony Baptist church, near Ellwood City.

Rev. E. J. Williams, pastor of the church, read the scripture. This was followed by prayer by Rev. Cobb. The chorister D. O. Davies, then led the assembled men in several musical selections, with Clifford James presiding at the piano. Griffith Thomas gave two short readings entitled "Adam and Eve" and "The Loyalty of Men" and Evan Hopkins sang a solo "When Theres Love at Home."

The president John C. Williams then called on the speaker of the occasion, Attorney Walter S. Reynolds, introducing him with a few well chosen remarks.

Attorney Reynolds gave a vivid and very interesting address on his trip to and through the Holy Land which proved a most appropriate subject, especially when delivered by a teacher of a large Bible class of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Reynolds spoke for more than an hour and his audience was so interested that it could have been much longer, so interesting was his description of what he saw in that famous land.

The address was followed by a delicious supper, which was served by a committee consisting of Rev. R. T. Williams, James G. Davis, Carl Turner, Eddie Davies, H. T. Jones and Thomas Thomas. William P. Williams had charge of the evenings program.

After the supper the gathering rendered selections as Deemster, Men of Harlech, Comrades in Arms and Harry Evans rendered "Hen Wlad fy Nhaden." The meeting is taken as an indication of a banner attendance Sunday morning at the class meeting in the church.

American Women Happiest Says Marlene Dietrich

The happiest women in the world are found in America!

Marlene Dietrich, after a five-month sojourn in this country, after studying the American woman from a fresh viewpoint, makes this observation.

"The women of this country are bewilderingly busy," says Miss Dietrich. "They manage households, social and business careers and are not impressed with the colossal number of things they accomplish each day. If they are poor, they work to attain the necessities and a few of the luxuries of life; if they are rich, they often work to keep occupied. It is a country of working women."

The young business women who swarm into offices and stores each morning have left an indelible impression on Miss Dietrich. They dress as well, if not better, than

Young Folks Tea

Mrs. J. G. Clements, Winter avenue, delightfully entertained a group of young people from the Epworth Methodist church in her home Friday evening for a silver tea. The tea table was daintily appointed, the centerpiece being formed of pastel shaded roses, with tall tapers, lighted at each corner of the table. Mrs. C. C. Harry assisted the hostess in pouring and serving.

The hours of the evening were spent informally by the young folks at games of various kinds and in vocal and instrumental music.

Merry Makers Club

Mrs. W. B. Gillespie, of Waimo, entertained the Merry Makers club in her home Friday evening. Cards and radio music formed the pastimes of the evening, and at the conclusion of play the high score prizes were awarded to Miss Cordelia Edgington and Mrs. Joseph Heaney.

A delicious menu was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Maxine Gillespie. Mrs. Paul Hunt of West Grant street will be hostess at the next meeting.

TOLL OF THE HIGHWAYS

IN SPITE of safety-first campaigns, lectures and editorials, and in spite of more or less vigorous enforcement of a multitude of laws designed to be remedial, the death toll from motor vehicle accidents last year was four per cent higher than that for 1929. The ghastly total was 32,500, according to the National Safety Council.

If there is any consolation or reassurance in the 1930 figures, it is in the fact that the percentage of increase was the lowest since motor traffic became a major safety problem. The 1929 toll represented a 12 per cent increase and the 1929 total was eight per cent higher than that of 1927.

Much significance is attached to comparative tables showing that states with the largest rural populations show the highest percentage of increase and that those which examine and license drivers had the best records. This analysis will exert great weight in legislative revision of motor codes this year.

Newspapers and railroad safety devices and warning signs can claim credit for reducing grade crossing fatalities last year. The press throughout the country has been hammering away at this slaughter so consistently and effectively that only the most reckless or absent-minded can now approach a grade crossing without instinctively taking some precautions. Publicity has paid.

Another gratifying gain in the field of safety-first is the saving of child life. Fewer school children are being killed by automobiles than was the case a few years ago. School patrols, education, prosecutions and police protection explain this.

HORSE RECOVERING PRESTIGE FOR PARADES

A picturesque custom will be revived at Harrisburg when the incoming governor and the outgoing governor ride from the executive mansion for the inauguration ceremonies at the capitol in a horse-drawn victoria. It formerly belonged to Governor Stone and has not been used since the days of Governor Tener.

Doubtless much speculation has been wasted on wondering why Gifford Pinchot chose this mode of travel. Political appeal to the farmer has been seen; the democracy of Thomas Jefferson, who tied his mount to a hitching post, has been recalled; and possibly other reasons have been surmised for the innovation suggests a state newspaper.

But one wonders if formal processions may not return to the custom of using the horse. Automobiles are not easily kept down to the slow rate of locomotion essential in a parade. They lack the dignity of equestrianism and the pomp of handsome coaches. In the beauty pageants at Atlantic City cars were permitted in line on the Boardwalk, but they could not proceed under their own power. They were wheeled along by men, giving spectators the illusion of the rolling chairs. From a practical viewpoint the Pinchot decision has much to commend it.

MILLIONS FOR CHARITY

The growing tendency of wealthy individuals to devote part of their fortunes to the welfare of humanity makes an interesting commentary on civilization. Most men who garner great riches for themselves have a yearning to help smooth the way toward human happiness. Few of them make provision for administering charity, but they do seek means of improving conditions and of removing the causes of poverty and distress.

Each year the nation's welfare bill increases. Last year, a bad year for both wealth and poverty, saw New Yorkers bequeathing $36,985,396 to altruistic ends. In addition, more than $50,000,000 was given by living donors for schools, hospitals, children's agencies and homes for the aged. That is the gift of a single city.

Charity and welfare funds donated and collected in the United States in a single year exceed the national budgets of some countries. Community funds, Christmas cheer funds, disaster relief funds, the Red Cross fund, endowment funds and gifts from individuals, corporations and estates combine to form an amazing total.

In the growing popularity of altruistic endowments can be seen a trace of the philosophy that a wide distribution of wealth works to the benefit of all. When men and women who have amassed great riches turn a large share of them to education, research, charity and social service the benefits are distributed over the nation.

BACK TO WORK

One straw may not make a haystack, but when five automobile factories in Detroit recall from idleness thousands of workers and add $2,000,000 weekly to their payrolls, the leadership of this industry in the industrial recovery cannot be questioned.

The five Detroit automobile factories are now employing 136,000 men on a working schedule of from three to five days a week. Since the five-day week prevailed before the general lay-off and most of the men now employed are working five days, this means that operations are almost normal.

Recovery in the automotive field is vital to recovery in all fields of industry and commerce. Directly or indirectly, this one industry supplies employment for millions of people. It has come to be considered a fundamental or key industry upon whose prosperity the nation's prosperity largely depends.

Other industries are to feel the gains made by the automotive trade, for every addition to the national payroll means more business for all and employment for the idle. The economic cycle needed a little impetus, which the automobile industry seems to have supplied.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 4:58. Sun rises tomorrow 7:21.

A London man has made a talkie of his will. Well, we have known a lot of wills that have made a lot of talk and some of it wasn't Sunday school conversation either.

Protect the Birds—The Dove Brings Peace and the Stork Brings Tax Exemption.

Modern poet who sings soulfully of "the blush of sweet sixteen" evidently hasn't yet learned that blush went out when silk hose began to supplant cotton stockings.

LIVING
A man tells me I can reduce my expenses by cutting out all luxuries and by doing a dozen mean little jobs I now pay others to do for me. He says "With the exception of the electric lights, the telephone and a very small percentage of the automobiles no permanent economic advantage has been contributed by the luxury business."

The man didn't say this to me; he wrote it and it was printed. I wish I knew the gentleman, so I could describe him to you. I think he is about ninety-eight years old, with a full growth of hair in each ear, and I suspect he wears congress boots.

I wish someone would tell me what a luxury is. Is a handkerchief a luxury? Is an umbrella a luxury? Is a hair-cut a luxury? Is a rose on the table a luxury?

People once got along without any of these.

I have been trying all my life to get along without luxuries. Not six times a year do I consciously indulge my desire for luxuries. Yet, if I checked my expenditures today against my budget of twenty years ago and charged the difference to luxurious living I could convince myself that I am squandering a lot of money foolishly.

Yet this is not the case. I can afford to live as I do live. I couldn't live any other way, because in doing so I would have to deprive myself of things I have come to regard as necessities.

As to the economic advantages of luxuries, there comes a time when it doesn't pay to figure in terms of economic advantages.

It is said that ninety per cent of the cost of food is the flavor. If we weren't particular about the flavor we could get along on about ten cents' worth of food a day—bread, salt pork and hominy, the usual fare of convicts.

A honey dew melon, has a greater economic or food value than a pumpkin, probably not half so much. Yet there are days when a section of ice cold honey dew melon will do more to set one up than all the pumpkins in Illinois.

The exquisite odor of a rare perfume may not have any economic value, but if the moon in hanging just right and the breeze is from the south, it does the soul a lot of good.

No one has yet quite satisfactorily explained just why we are on earth and until this is explained I think we might as well take it for granted that we are at liberty to make life as sweet and joyful for ourselves as we can.

To this end, our first task is to unload the drudgery on to machines which we are doing very rapidly.

As we acquire leisure and freedom from back-breaking toil, it seems logical that we should leave our lives by enjoying a few un-economic futurities.

It doesn't hurt me to see a family of five making a trans-continental tour in a flivver. It may be un-economic; perhaps the man should be hoeing corn and the woman washing dishes, but to deny them the brief spell of alleged happiness would be like shooting a boy's pet dog because he wasn't paying his way with eggs or bacon.

Did you see that play called "Applesauce"? Allan Dinehart played the part of an interesting character who believes in telling people good things about themselves. He argues eloquently that praise always pays. When Mr. Dinehart was asked if he himself believed what he said in the play, he answered:

"I think the story of an old gardener I once knew will answer the question. It is a true story, told me by the gardener himself. He one day showed me two flower beds in his garden. In one of the flowers were singularly large and lovely and fragrant. In the other they were not nearly so perfect, and in many instances showed blight. I asked an explanation of the difference.

"It was, an experiment," my gardener friend told me. "I give each of the beds equal care and attention. I water each; weed each; see that each has the proper soil, and the right conditions for growth and flowering. The only difference I make is that I praise the flowers in one bed and do not praise those in the others. Every time I tend the former I fill my consciousness with love and praise for them. Every time I tend the other bed I deliberately withhold all praise. The result speaks for itself."

I VISITED LADY LUCK

I got myself a shine and a shave and put on my best suit and went to call on Lady Luck. She lives on a splendid estate outside of town and I was curious to see what she looked like. A little bird told me where she lived.

I shivered as I entered the great gateway. A moon was shining and I looked at it over my left shoulder. A black cat ran across my path. An enormous owl went hooting by and almost touched me with his wings. I crossed a green lawn and even in the moonlight I could see it was clover. . . . I bent down and picked some as I passed, and I found that all the clover had four leaves.

All the trees in the park were planted in groups of three and seven. The walks were of solid smooth material not a crack in them, anyway. . . . A great horse-shoe hung over the doorway of the home. A footman stood inside the door and I noticed that all his buttons were golden discs.

The hangings were magnificently embroidered with Aces and Kings and Queens and Jacks and Tens. . . . I was indeed in the House of Lady Luck.

The Lady herself was sitting on a throne of translucent green stone and hundreds of rabbits feet dangled from the beautiful white robe that covered her splendid shoulders. But her face was sad, her smile was mournful. She was a most unhappy woman, Lady Luck. And the burden of her grief was this:

"Nobody loves me (said she), nobody ever gives me any credit. Nobody remembers me when times are good. I haven't a friend in the world. When a man is on top of the world, he gives himself credit. He talks about his courage and his judgement and he is proud. When he draws good cards, he prides himself on how well he plays his hand. When he draws poor cards, he CURSES ME. You do that, too. I heard you last night. . . . You were talking about me under your breath, and you weren't being polite, either."

"But don't be upset about it. I'm not angry, but my feelings are hurt. Everybody talks about his Luck. Nobody's grateful. I try to give people a helping hand and then, when I think they're strong enough to go by themselves they creep all over the place and say 'I'm Mean and Selfish. I'm getting sick of it. Why should I do all the work and never get any thanks for it? I Never Have Any Luck!'"

There was nothing I could say to the Lady. But I kissed her hand and promised to do better and backed out of the Room of Presence. And the footman sneered at me and the owl hooted at me most rudely, and I can't tell you how sorry I felt for Lady Luck who never has any luck of her own—because we behave like ungrateful human beings.

CHANGE
Against the restless tide of change
Not long can much we build remain.
And soon or late we rearrange
Our lives to meet some powerful strain.

Unseen, unfelt the power goes on Beneath the surface which we see,
Then suddenly from us is gone
What permanent we thought to be.

Out of old ways emerge the new,
Even against the will of man;
What yesterday we rose to do
No longer serves the modern plan.

Custom and habit break before
Life's irresistible command.
Who has been dead a year or more
Our speech would scarcely understand.

Though buildings fall and fortunes fade
As change another victory gains,
As twice since first the world was made
The value of a man remains.

Still honored here and still will be Through every change that time shall bring
That man who lives courageously
And to his nobler deeds to cling.

ON SHAKING HANDS

How do you shake hands?
Up and down, me-mechanical motion,
Devoid of friendly feeling?

Shaking hands with some men, is like taking hold of a dead fish.

Unless there is a physical handicap a greeting of this sort is worth nothing at all.

But there is a fellow who goes to the opposite extreme and displays his grip when he shakes hands.

There is always cause for suspicion of the man who is too muscular and energetic when he greets you in handshaking.

Usually he has some object besides friendship.

But even this fellow has more to recommend him than the man who merely allows his own hand to be shaken.

One may be calculating and personal, but the other is too disinterested and impersonal.

Then there is the fellow who has no wrong motive but shakes hands with everybody trying to create impressions—they are natural.

Country Advises Congress To Avoid Special Session

Business Recovery Believed Likely To Be Aided By Halt In Legislation And Greater Stability Through Removal Of Uncertainty

Benefits which are likely to come to the country through elimination of special session plans by congress are emphasized in the comment that has appeared in the press of the nation. Uncertainty now is a major company a failure to halt legislation at the end of the regular session is declared detrimental to the business recovery. The desired result, however, it is held, cannot be achieved without care in avoiding unnecessary debate.

It would be discouraging, in the opinion of the DULUTH HERALD, to have a special session "with its agitation, its politics and its consequent uncertainties." That paper advises the members to be "economical in conversation, and to substitute 'action for speechmaking.'" The WORCESTER EVENING GAZETTE finds it "a toss-up whether we are to have an extra session or not," and suggests: "It is not for the president to curtail the eloquence of the senate. But he is well within his rights if he directs the senate's attention to the need of confining its activities to the essential business in hand."

"There is ample ground," according to the JACKSON CITIZEN PATRIOT, "for the belief that the president will be virtually compelled to summon a special session. The members of congress who favor such a move are able to enforce their demand by obstructing essential legislation in the present session. And attacks upon their regularity will only serve to stir them to adopt that course. If the political sagacity of its leadership were the determining factor of the Republican strength that party would be weak indeed."

"If an extra session is imposed on the nation," says the CHARLOTTE OBSERVER, "it will be because of a determined effort on the part of enemies of the administration to embarrass President Hoover's good purposes. There is abundant time in which all business of necessary character could be put out of the way this session, and with some time to spare, but there are some men in the senate who would let the interests of the people go hang, just so they could block Hoover's desire to have success written for his administration. And in that, Republicans are playing a more responsible hand than are the Democrats."

At this time of economic and political uncertainty, declares the DALLAS JOURNAL, such a session "would be highly loaded. It might do much to add to existing uncertainty, and if it ran true to the record of legislative functioning out of the regular order, it would accomplish little of good to the country."

The SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS remarks: "Excepting last summer and last fall, congress has been in session almost continuously since April, 1929. The effect on the world-wide economic situation has been disturbing rather than reassuring. With no new regulatory laws in prospect until next December, at earliest, business will have opportunity to recover."

Referring to Mike Shoals and other members like report denature the SPRINGFIELD MASS. UNION argues: "If a special session for endless debate on such matters of controversy is avoided, it will be because the more responsible leaders of both parties realize the danger not only to business recovery but to their own political fortunes. The fact that the wiser Democratic leaders do not want a special session is really an admission that could hardly fail to be harmful to business and thus to the people. Republican leaders may be looking at the matter in the same political way, but with both it is a relief that the immediate prospects of business and employment would be far better were the enterprise of the people left free from the influence of the uncertainties of a congress such as the next is likely to be."

"Such has been the expressions on it in the business world since the November elections," thinks the DETROIT NEWS, "that there can be no doubt of a virtually unanimous opinion against an extra session of congress which is nearly evenly divided between the political parties and is still further divided into political factions. There can be no confidence in a congress like that; nor expectations of anything except turmoil at Washington all next summer if congress is in session. There is confidence that President Hoover will assist in steadying business and industry if left for a while unhampered by party and factional politics. That an extra session is necessary as has been intimated by Senator Borah, or would not be a business deterrent, as has been said by Senator Burkle of Kentucky, introduces this early into the situation the humdrum that might be expected from a small group endeavoring at the last minute to compel President Hoover to call an extra session. A half-dozen senators can enforce one and stand in the national limelight while so doing."

Assuming that "nobody can say with any degree of certainty what the political complexion of the next congress may be," and that "the administration will be virtually powerless to carry through any legislative program," the CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST concludes:

"The chances are against an extra session with the possibility that the Progressives may become so exasperated, what with the supping of their ranks by such methods as Lucas, executive chairman of the national committee, used against Senator Norris, and antagonism to the whole Hoover philosophy—with perhaps, a genuine determination to set defeat of the president for re-nomination by the Republican party next year—that they will resort to tactics sufficiently dilatory, without being definable as filibustering, to force a failure of the main legislation at the short session and so necessitate an extraordinary session." Congress is treated by the OAKLAND TRIBUNE as "in a race to see if it can finish the necessary routine before adjournment," and that paper quotes "opinion it can win that race if the members do not insist upon debating other issues." The BUFFALO EVENING NEWS assails "demagogism" in congress as "detrimental to business," and concludes: "More ventilation, which seems to arouse popular prejudice and passion from motives of political strategy, is a very different kind of mental exercise from frank and reasonable debate. Those who are engaged in this form of harmful disturbance could be brought to a halt very quickly if they were impressed with the idea that public opinion fully understands them and is tired of them. The times are not right to treat the antics of men dealing with public affairs merely as a source of entertainment."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

YES, BUT THERE'S EINSTEIN.

The number of stars in the entire sky visible to the average unaided eye is between 5,000 and 6,000; the number visible in our most powerful telescope exceeds 100,000,000; the total number that can be photographed with the 100-inch reflecting telescope on Mount Wilson, California, is probably well over a thousand million. Astronomers believe that in our own galaxy, or Milky Way system, there are 30 or 40 thousand million stars, most of which are far beyond the reach of our present telescopes.

Notwithstanding all these figures Prof. Einstein has a theory which seems to throw some doubt upon the story of the astronomers. Perhaps the Einstein Theory is best summed up in: "They ain't where we think they are."

IF YOU HAVE NO

Plan for your life do not blame some one else if you get nowhere.

Courage to face your responsibilities do not blame some one else if they hesitate to help.

Friends to share within your own soul first for the real reason. Pleasure in life, try helping some one who has less.

Faith in your own worth you can not expect the rest of the world to get enthusiastic.

Enemies, the probabilities are that you have never fought a wrong. Hope for tomorrow you have no real joy in today.

REMISSION OF SIN—And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission. It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these. For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us—Heb. 9:22-24

HAWKINS-LESLIE TO HEAD MAYOR TICKET

In an exciting but unusually orderly "political caucus" held last night in the Chamber of Commerce, delegates speaking for various Boy Scout troops of the New Castle district assembled to plan party platforms and nominations for candidates to be voted on by the local scouts at a model general election during "Scout Anniversary Week," February 8 to 14.

The caucus came as a forerunner to the general election, much in the same manner as a primary precedes one. All of the city and county's public offices will be filled by scouts for an hour on Lincoln's birthday, February 12.

Reports emanating from different circles said today the "caucus" went quite the same way those of the groupings do, except that one teller complained that no one passed the smokes.

Mayor Vote First
The "political rulers" seemed all but decided on their candidate for mayor, Eagle Scouts Thomas Hawkins and Mac Leslie being nominated as the first full ballot. Hawkins is a senior patrol leader in the Highland U. P. church troop and was head of the Indian Village at Camp John Phillips last year. He is a leader in Hi-Y work. Leslie, a stockade leader at camp last summer, is a member of Troop 1, of Ben Franklin junior high school.

For complicity in the following candidates were nominated:
Eagle Scout Tom Fambro, Troop 1; Eagle Scout William Woodworth, Troop 1; Life Scout Alfred Stump, Troop 21; Life Scout William Offutt, Troop 18; Life Scout Raymond Bennett, Troop 15; Life Scout Robert Ray, Troop 15; Life Scout Jonathan Brown, Troop 17; and Star Scout R. Rogers, Troop 5.

For city treasurer they named Star Scout Roger Rowe, Troop 17, and Herbert Christman, Troop 17.

For city controller they named Eagle Scout George Winter, Troop 18, and Star Scout George Horton, Troop 37.

Gathering Tonight
Candidates whose names were figuratively placed on the ballots by the action of last night are asked to gather at scout headquarters at 7 o'clock tonight, where Scout Executive Herbert Horton will meet them. Party names, platforms and planks will be lined up, and while these were outlined in general last night it was felt no candidate should commit himself to a party unless he thoroughly believed in its basic principles.

Scout Executive Horton said this morning that Mayor W. H. Gillespie and the entire board of city fathers has given assent to the proposed plan whereby scouts will resume the public offices. They will cooperate to make the day a gala one.

Installation of the scout officials, to be chosen from the candidates announced above, will be a colorful ceremony at City hall that day.

It is also the plan to have county offices from the judgeships down assumed by boys that "Citizens' Day" of the week's celebration will be one long remembered.

Delegates of Troop 13 (Union township), New Bedford, and New Wilmington 1 will assemble for the naming of the county ticket later. It will include two judges, a sheriff, county treasurer, county recorder, prothonotary, jury commissioner and three county commissioners.

Senator Davis Denies Corrupt Election Funds

Senator James J. Davis Takes Witness Stand To Defend Himself

CALLING OF MORE WITNESSES DEFERRED

Nye Committee Must Scrape Up Some More Money Before Continuing Probe

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Calling of a score or more witnesses on behalf of Sen. James J. Davis (R) of Pennsylvania, before the Nye senatorial campaign committee, has been deferred until Jan. 28 by agreement with Davis' counsel, Joseph E. Davies, former Democratic member of the federal trade commission, it was announced today.

Davis in a dramatic appearance yesterday denied having committed any corrupt or unlawful acts in connection with his campaign, and two other witnesses testified he could have been elected without any expenditure.

New Life Granted.
Witnesses subpoenaed by the committee, and excused when there appeared to be no funds with which to pay them, will be called next Thursday, with one exception. The life of the committee was extended until next January, by the senate, during the day.

Vincent Smith, of Greensburg, Pa., will be called today in connection with the Davis-Brown campaign, but he will be the only witness. The committee will then put in the record reports bearing on the Philadelphia committee's activities and some count reports hitherto undisclosed.

He entered tabulations late yesterday showing a grand total ticket on behalf of the Davis-Brown ticket of $1,127,887, and heard State Superior Judge James B. Drew of Pittsburgh, and Edward Martin, state Republican chairman, testify that only a "very small percentage of the money spent 'should in fairness' be charged to Davis' account."

Martin had supported Joseph R. Grundy in the primary and then as state chairman was called to support Davis and Pinchot in the general election.

When the proposed coalition between Grundy and Vore forces failed to materialize, Martin said, he had to set up a "new organization" in Philadelphia for Pinchot.

Normal Republican Vote.
"We put forward our best efforts for Pinchot and let the rest of the ticket go because we knew that was all right," he said.

With the exception of Pinchot, he added, the Republican ticket received the normal republican vote.

He said Hemphill, the Democratic-Liberal wet candidate, got considerable support in the Republican stronghold because of the wet sentiment in South Philadelphia.

"The wet sentiment there," he said, "is so strong that Vore could not control it in 1928, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Flora Vore, was defeated for the state senate."

Of Davis, Martin said: "If I could have prevented some of the Republicans from going over to the Liberal cause (Hemphill) I would not have had to spend a cent on Davis."

He explained that it would be difficult to apportion the money spent on Davis because of the fact that Davis gave strength to the ticket.

The committee put on Samuel L. McFetridge, Philadelphia printer, to tell of an unpaid printing bill for $74,866 previously testified to.

McFetridge, said he carried on his books as $22,000, to Davis, approximately $32,000.

Lawrence County Farm Agent H. R. McCulloch is in Harrisburg to assist in preparations for the sheep and wool exhibits that will be held in the capital city in connection with the Pennsylvania state show.

Library Books Moving Faster

Last Month Books Of Public Library Circulated On Average Of 1009 A Day

Little rest is enjoyed by the books of the New Castle free public library. They are always on the go. Just as soon as a book is returned to the central library, or any of its branches in Mahoningtown, East Side, Jameson hospital and South Side, an eager pair of eyes put them on the spot again and they are taken home to be read. And so on—it is a vicious circle.

Miss Alice Sterling, librarian, reported at a recent meeting of the board of trustees, that the average daily circulation of books during the month of December was 1009.

Miss Sterling, in checking the December circulation of books with the corresponding month of the year before, found that this last December there was a gain of 39 per cent. The adult gain was 51 per cent and the juvenile 27 per cent. All the branches gained as follows: Mahoningtown 57 per cent; Jameson hospital 29 per cent; South Side 13 per cent; East Side 50 per cent.

Books at the main library building, corner of Jefferson and North streets, according to the librarian, were checked out 26,240 times. Books from the branch libraries were checked out 13,693 times.

Men's Bible Class Discuss Questions

First Baptist Men Take Up Questions Of The Day In The Sabbath School Session

The Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church is making a very interesting study of the Prophecy of Daniel, under the leadership of the pastor, George M. Landis. A free vest pocket of the book of Daniel is given to each man attending. Sunday morning the subject will be "The End of Empire, or the Stone That Falls From Heaven." The study will be illustrated by a chart of Nebuchadnezzar's image, which was drawn and painted by Owen Penfield Fox, the local artist of repute.

Some of the questions which will be discussed are: "Is human government the hope of the world? When will the times of the Gentiles end? Will there ever be another world empire? What is the stone that falls from heaven and crushes the clay feet of the image of Gentile world domination? Is the world gradually getting better and will the preaching of the gospel finally convert the whole world and bring in the millennial kingdom?"

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Study Problem, Widowed Mother Of Boy Advised

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D., Head, Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

A letter came to me the other day from a mother of St. Louis. "My husband passed away six weeks ago and left me with an eight-year-old boy. Now my husband was more strict with the boy than I was. Mother-like, so of course he minded his dad pretty well. Now that he is gone I have an awful time, as he ignores me completely, doesn't pay a bit of attention to anything I say or do."

All on can say to such a mother is that she should spend a deal of time and effort studying her problem and in working out a program. First of all, she should consider a few of the most important items in his conduct; see how she can reduce her commands about 95 per cent, making sure to give non that are unimportant. Every time she repeats a command or lets one go unexecuted, she makes her authority less effective and the child less respectful of law and order.

Her commands will be most effective if she loses no opportunity to show her appreciation of every good thing that he does, enjoying his creations and success with him, reading a great deal to him, and teaching him to enjoy reading to her. Let her rarely say "no," but when she does be ready to make it final so that he will get no satisfaction from argument. Let her seldom tell that boy to do anything, but make requests instead, building up in him over weeks and weeks a readiness to co-operate. Of course she has no easy job.

Dr. Myers began a series of six addresses, Jan. 6, over WTAM, Cleveland, on "Building Personality in the Child." Given each Tuesday, at 10 a. m., eastern standard time.

Council Continues Work On Assessments

Council reconvened at City Hall Friday afternoon as a board to revision and took action on additional assessments in the Second Ward. Recently they adjourned when they reached the letter "G" as the assessments are being considered alphabetically.

At that time they established a rate per foot front valuation on Second ward streets and instructed assessors to figure the land valuations. Yesterday they passed on ground building and dwelling assessments beginning in "G" and were in "H" when adjournment came.

The assessment on the ground was not read out during the meeting but assessments on the buildings and houses were. Should assessments be increased over 1931 as set by the assessor the property owners will be notified. If reductions occurred no notice will be sent out.

WET PRESIDENT WILL NEVER GET ELECTION IN U. S.

brought on Atterbury, the wet president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to the 18th Amendment. They but we countered with Henry Ford, Mr. Edison, Irving Fisher, Mrs. Peabody and the Woman's Club of the Nation. I was more interested in Mrs. Strawbridge of Philadelphia and her letter to the social women of Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, and New York. She wrote them one of the most beautiful letters anyone ever composed, telling them that she was tired of furnishing liquor in violation of the law to guests, and asking them if they felt as she did about it and if they would stand by her in an agreement not to do it again. Three thousand replies brought fifteen hundred who would join her; about three hundred who felt as she did, thought it was wrong as much protection as they got from the laws of the land and the constitution, to be tramping them under their feet, but supposed they would have to do it if others did; about three hundred who were wet and will continue to violate law.

Mr. LaGuardia asked her if she wrote this herself, or had assistance. She announced that she had very able assistance. LaGuardia asked "who". She said Chief Justice Taft on the last afternoon that he sat up, gave me two hours in helping to compose this letter, and really did most of the composition.

Lobby Committee
Next, we had in Washington, the Lobby Investigation Committee. When that committee was appointed our Board wrote and asked if Mr. Tinkham said that we were lobbyists. We investigated to see if there was any truth in this proposition. And if we were to be investigated we called attention in the same letter to the propriety of examining the accounts and records of the Association Against the 18th Amendment. According to the reports of that Council, the smell of fire upon their garments. Not a single criticism was made by any member of the Committee upon any of the records or the work of the Board of Temperance. They have said that we were doing a legitimate piece of work, and educational work, and were not in the lobby business.

The association against the 18th Amendment was a revelation. The president, about a $2500 man, gets $25,000 salary and an allowance of $25,000 more for expenses. Mr. Stanton, the secretary and treasurer, gets $10,000 salary and $15,000 allowance for expenses. Rather an extravagant salary for the contributors' money. Then Christian Stanton in a report to his board, revealed the fact that Mr. Dupont contributed a vast sum and in thanking him, DuPont remarked, "Never mind about that. If we get beer back to the status it had before prohibition, it would save the DuPonts $10,000,000 a year in taxes." This reveals two or three things. That he wants the saloon back, that is the status beer had before prohibition, is that he is willing to let the poor man's throat pay the rich man's taxes. That will not go down well with the American people, and his statement that he will contribute millions before he will let prohibition stand, reveals utter blindness as to the fact that the United States is not for sale. Then came the DuPont fake referendum on a private enterprise in his own office, he makes the little state of Delaware, my native state "wet", and sends out publicity that it is going five to one wet, but when the election came, he defeated every wet on both tickets and elected dregs for governor. United States senators and state officers right down the line, and showed that the state is overwhelmingly bone dry.

False Propaganda.
That brings us to the Literary Digest poll, the most damaging piece of propaganda against the dry regime that has yet struck us in eleven years. The politicians and a lot of simple-minded followers swallow that thing whole. The American people have sharp memories. Nine years ago when prohibition was a year and a half old, they did a similar thing by the same methods, the same wet propaganda, to show that prohibition, just starting, was being repudiated by the American people. The American people have never agreed with them at any election. Three weeks before the election, nine years ago, they announced that Ohio and California were over-whelmingly wet. That was to influence the most important election in the United States, to come in just three weeks. But what did the states do? Ohio elected Frank L. Willis, the driest speaker of the Anti-Saloon League, its U. S. senator. Pennsylvania, a damp Republican candidate for governor was voted down and they elected Donahue a Democrat and called him in for three terms. They elected a whole row of dry congressmen and voted down the amendment to the state prohibition law by 186,000 majority, and the boys were all back home from France. California elected on the same day a dry governor, dry legislature, six out of eight congressmen and enacted by vote of the people "The Wright Bill", the strictest prohibition law in any state of the Union.

The false propaganda that now fills some of the wet presses is astounding to any discriminating reader. They tell us one day that Senator Wheeler of Montana has gone wet. Wheeler could not go wet any more than I could dry. He has been sopping and drinking for the last twelve years. They say that Morrow's victory in New Jersey is a turning of a dry state over to a wet leader. Morrow is the driest man who has ever been nominated by the Republican party in New Jersey. He takes the seat vacated by Edge and inside and out, and Edwards, who tried to make his state as wet as the Atlantic ocean. Morrow is the driest man New Jersey ever had. When he was running, he announced that he would come to such and such a place in an airplane with his son-in-law. Twenty-five thousand people would stand looking up into space waiting for him and "worse shipping". Now the wet says they want to run him for the presidency in the wet states as a wet, and in the dry states as Lindbergh's father-in-law.

There is one thing we must admit that we are beaten on. The association against the 18th Amendment with its publicity bureau has beaten us at propaganda. They made a great mass of Americans believe that everything was going wet this fall. These people were so fooled that they came up to the election with the defeatist's psychology, and some of the dregs voted hopelessly and the wets almost triumphantly, but when the ballots were counted, the wets had gained no territory. Electing Morrow in New Jersey wasn't "going wet." He took the place of Edge and Edwards and Martini and it is an advance for decency and sobriety. It was noted that the outstanding dregs were overwhelmingly re-elected.

Sheppard received the largest vote he ever had in Texas, Walsh the largest vote he ever received in Montana, Borah the largest he ever got in Idaho, Norris his biggest vote in Nebraska. In Colorado, Phipps who was damp, was supplanted by a bone dry democrat. The senate will have one more dry majority than it had before, and the house only loses about eighteen votes. There is no note of discouragement in Washington that I have been able to discover and a weak propaganda that emanates from one of our big New York papers that there are about forty men about to change their votes from dry to wet, is simply a quotation from one of our fine men who got defeated, and the other day in reading a description of the Battle of Gettysburg, I found this sentence:

"I saw the first two hundred wounded men brought in; I asked them how the battle was going and every one said the battle was lost. I was greatly aroused for I had not been in the service long enough to know that to a wounded man the battle is always lost." I found the same psychological law holds with reference to defeated men. They think the cause is gone. The people took good care of prohibition at the last election.

Dr. Wilson concluded his address with a suggestion as to what will do the most good in aiding the cause of prohibition in the United States and that is a wave of great moral suasion and total abstinence pledge. This has already been started in the south and Dr. Wilson appealed for assistance in putting the campaign into working order throughout the United States.

The meeting closed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. G. M. Landis, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Big Donations Are Received In Red Cross Appeal

Many Large Contributions Follow Hoover's Proclamation On Drought Relief

According to word received by the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, the publication of President Hoover's proclamation calling for a $10,000,000 relief fund for drought sufferers was met with an immediate response from large contributors. The New York County chapter in New York City received $25,000 from the New York Times and $5,000 from Mrs. E. H. Harriman the same day.

Quantities of clothing, including garments for children who are being kept home from school in the drought districts because of a lack of the same, are being shipped daily into the affected areas.

Many chapters in other areas, who have quantities of children's new clothing, and layettes for newborn infants, are producing these garments by the thousand from their emergency closets. Many other chapters have called in women volunteers to make garments and recondition clothing donated for adults.

Many appealing letters have been received by the Red Cross from the drought stricken areas, telling of suffering because of a lack of food. Yeast has been distributed in many districts to combat pellagra, it having proven highly effective during the Mississippi Valley flood in 1927.

In a telegram received today by the local Chapter, Chairman John Barton Payne, states:

"The needs of the drought stricken sufferers are immediate and insistent. Pending legislation may never become effective. Important signs are being taken to make our campaign successful, which will be announced shortly. The job of the Red Cross is to collect the amount needed and meet its responsibilities as it always has."

Local contributions may be made at the Chapter offices, 8 1/2 East street.

A JOURNEY TO VENUS

Being An Account Of A Flight Through Space From
The Earth To The Planet Venus

By S. S. MYERS

CHAPTER V

We were aroused during the night by a lively confusion outside of our ship. There was a grunting and snarling that sounded as if we were surrounded by vicious wild animals. The lights were turned on and Berwick and Linn, each with a gun, made their way to the door and opened it. The reflection of the light within made a little impression on the surrounding darkness but grotesque figures could dimly be seen moving about. They each fired and there seemed to be a general stampede.

Just then our attention was attracted to a distant rumbling which gradually increased to a roar, accompanied by heavy thunder with flashes of light illuminating the sky. A storm or hurricane was rapidly approaching. Then came sweeping gusts of wind which threatened to tear our ship loose from its fastenings and hurl us into the sea. This was followed by a downpour—a perfect deluge of rain such as none of us had ever witnessed before. In the meantime the thunder shook the planet and the lightning was incessant. It was sublime and awful! Fortunately, the main part of the storm passed around us, otherwise we would certainly have met with disaster.

The storm lasted not over twenty minutes, but in the meantime it lashed the sea into a fury and the roaring waves dashed up to our ship. We did not attempt to sleep during the remainder of the night and were greatly relieved when it began to grow light. With the break of day we discovered that one of the shots fired during the night by the mechanics had taken effect; stretched upon the beach was a dead animal which curiously resembled a huge water-dog.

After breakfast Professor Scharwenski and Dr. Swartz set about to determine our latitude which indicated that we were a short distance north of the equator. Although the needle of the compass acted somewhat erratic, it pointed in a general direction to what was assumed to be north. It was then decided to set out on a general exploring expedition, traveling in our ship.

We got up in the air without any difficulty and directed our course northward along the shore. We flew about 500 miles in a direction slightly east of north, always keeping along the shore of what we now decided was an ocean, and passed over several streams emptying into the main body of water, one fully two miles wide. Then, directing our course inland, we flew westward about 200 miles, passing over vast stretches of primitive forests, with here and there an open, prairie-like plain which seemed to be covered with tall grass, and finally landed on the shore of a peaceful looking lake about a mile wide and approximately three miles long. There was a barren, rolling plain extending some distance south of the shore on which we landed, but we could see with the aid of the glasses that the opposite shore was lined by rocky cliffs.

I may state here that the water of the ocean where we first landed was of a grayish color, unlike the blue shade of large bodies of water on earth, but when dipped up in a pail it was clear. We tested the water of the ocean and found it to be slightly salty, but not so much so as ocean water on the earth. That of the lake was fresh and drinkable, but rather warm.

It was drawing toward evening by the time we had made our ship fast and secure against any storm that might occur. In the meantime Dr. Swartz, who had been scanning the farther shore through the field glasses, announced that he had seen something moving among the rocks.

but could not make out what kind of creature it might be. We all took turns at looking through the glasses, and I imagined I saw something that resembled a human being making its way along a shelf of rock, but a moment later it disappeared. At any rate it was moving in an upright position and not on all fours like an ordinary animal.

As night approached we saw two monstrous birds fly over head and disappear toward the farther end of the lake. They were strange looking birds if such they could be called. They were flying quite low and I could see that they somewhat resembled large pelicans. They had axe shaped beaks and web wings like a bat. When it began to grow dark we were besieged by a swarm of insects as large as dragon flies. They seemed to be harmless, nevertheless we were forced to take shelter within our ship.

I was the last up the next morning and, as I emerged from the ship, I was amazed to see a commodious row boat of the latest pattern floating on the water close to shore, made fast with a rope.

(To be continued Monday.)

SLIPPERY ROCK IN NATIONAL SCHOOL EVENTS

SLIPPERY ROCK, Jan. 17.—Charles Elliott, a senior in Slippery Rock high school will give at the Penn Products Show at Harrisburg this week a report of his trip to Kansas City as a member of the Pennsylvania Livestock judging team which represented the state at the American Royal Livestock Show. Charles won third place in this national event in horse judging.

Now, the boys' quartet, composed of Joe Gibson, Dale Adams, Norman Straub and John Grossman has been chosen to represent the local high school in the National high school chorus, which will sing at the sixty-first annual convention of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association, to be held in Detroit, February 21-26.

The National high school chorus is comprised of 400 voices selected by public school superintendents because of superior ability and training in vocal music. Mrs. Gladys Arnold, supervisor of music in the Training School of State Teachers College is responsible for preparing the Slippery Rock representatives.

High schools in twenty-seven states will be represented in the chorus, which will be directed by Hollis Dann, director of the department of music at New York University, New York City. ## Peter's Adventures

A NEW CAPTIVE OF REDSKINS
Lively spoke without a trace of anger. She didn't seem to care a bit that the Red Skins got all the good things of life and the poor Black slaves all the leavings, Peter could understand it.

"I should think it would make you so mad to be a slave that you would grow to hate those who make you wait upon them."

"Oh, no!" Lively shook her head. "Our mistresses are good to us in their own fashion. And, after all, the life of a slave is the only life most of us have ever known. Most of us were brought here while we were still babes in cocoons and born in captivity. To be sure, once in a while one runs across a Black Ant who has known what freedom was, and long for it. Such an ant has been taken prisoner of war and spared instead of having her head chopped off, as happens to most of the grown-up Black Ant captives. As all good Ants should, these try to make the best of things, and do their duty, but they die of a broken heart before long."

Lively sighed deeply. "This very afternoon I met an ant who had just been captured. As she passed me she made believe she had twisted her claw, and asked me to help her up. I bent over and she whispered that she was searching for somebody. Before she could tell me more we were interrupted. You see, the Redskins are very cautious, and keep close track on us. And one of the things they will not let us do if they can help it is to talk long to a newly taken prisoner. They are afraid the newcomers will make us wish for our freedom."

"When did you see that ant?" demanded Peter.

"I met her within the city in the passage way. She was mourning for her people. Dear me! It was very sad!" Lively dashed a teardrop from her eye.

Complete Exams In Scott Township

Honor Pupils For First Four Months Of School Are Named

Mid-term examinations have been completed in the Scott township high school, the results of which indicate a large percentage of well prepared freshmen for the coming year.

Honor pupils for the first four months in Mr. Miller's room are as follows: Dorothy Harlan and Alice Dean, tied for first honors; William Ewing, Agnes Peebles, Ida Peebles. These who have won spelling honors are Dorothy Harlan, Alice Dean and George Walters.

Quite a number of pupils in Mr. Miller's room have been on the sick list, including Gaylord Strouthing, George Walters, Thomas Mallinck, Junior LaVan, William Hammer-schmidt, Mildred Hammerschmidt, Blanche Gardner and Ellen Eakin.

CHILDREN LIKE STORY HOUR ROOM

The room under the south wing of the local free public library, that was some time ago decorated, heated and made into an attractive story hour room for children, has proven itself to be greatly appreciated by the youngsters of local grade schools.

This appreciation is shown by the fact that the attendance at the Friday evening story hours during December 1930 was 490, whereas the attendance in December 1929 was 150, according to Miss Alice Sterling, librarian.

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

Letters Intended For This Column Must Be Signed With Name And Address Of Writer

Jan. 16, 1931.
Editor, New Castle News,
New Castle, Pa.
Dear Sir:

At the recent annual meeting of the congregation of the First Christian church, I was instructed to convey to you the sincere appreciation of our church for the splendid publicity which you have given us during the past year. We feel that New Castle is indeed fortunate to have a newspaper that is so willing to give as much space as you give to the publication of church news. This motion of appreciation has been placed on the permanent records of our church.

With every good wish for the continued success of your valuable paper, I am

Truly yours,
C. D. MILLS,
Secretary.

Forty Terrace Pupils To Enter Junior Highs

According to Miss A. R. Perry, principal of the Terrace avenue school approximately 40 students will be enrolled in the different Junior high schools of the city from the Terrace avenue school, at the start of the second semester of school.

This is the number of students who are sixth graders now and who will become seventh grade students next semester.

One of the chief things which is stressed at Terrace school is oral composition. Practically every student in school can get up and give an oral composition in English at a short notice.

The first graders who have been in school four months are able to read short stories about animals and other topics taught in the first grade. An interesting place to visit in the Terrace building is the second floor where the picture gallery is located. On the left of the second floor are found pictures of historical men of all times. On the right are different drawings and posters made by the students from the first grade to the sixth grade.

The pupils deem it an honor to have their drawings or posters placed on the second floor. At a result the scholars strive hard to do their best work. In one of the rooms of the school is located a map of the United States which has been constructed by Holbert Warlick. The map is made of dirt.

If a state produces shoes, a shoe made out of soap is found laying in the center of that particular state. In this way one looking at the map knows what each state produces.

LIBRARY STAFF MEETS REGULARLY

Miss Alice M. Sterling, librarian, reported to the library board, at the January meeting that twice every month staff meetings are held in the library, with a program of discussion of library matters and reviews of books and magazines.

A tight-wad saved his own life the other evening. He started to asphyxiate himself and then discovered that he had to put a quarter in his meter.

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Cold wave, expected to cross and cover continent during week centering on 15, will be expected to move into the far south but not so far south nor will it be so severe as cold wave centering on 10. Storm wave of moderate force, expected to cross continent in southern transcontinental storm path during week centering on 20, will probably cause the heaviest and most general precipitation of last half of January and will cause a general rise in average temperatures that will result in last half of month averaging above normal temperatures over the continent; during last ten days of January, a warm wave will reach farther north than usual, causing one of the open periods forecasted to occur during the present winter; this warm wave is expected to center on 26, as storm wave of severe force crosses continent thru southern states bringing breezes from the south to frozen northern fields. As this will be a low barometer storm wave, warmest days will be just before and during passage of storm center; as a high barometer storm wave moves thru southern states, warmest days in northern areas occur just following passage of storm center; this difference is due to the fact that air currents around a low barometer storm center move in the opposite direction to the movement of the hands of a clock, whereas, around a high barometer storm center, air currents move in the same direction as the clock hands.

I have forecasted neither drought nor floods for any area of North America during 1931 crop season and will expect neither of these conditions to occur over any large area during the year. Spring will furnish ample and general moisture, but principal spring precipitation will occur before northern fields have been thawed to receive it as sub-soil moisture. As an average for the continent, spring temperatures will average too low for best results, yet, as a general forecast, early planting and sowing, deep and thorough cultivation and catering to high lands will be advisable for all but very early maturing crops and crops that will stand hot, dry weather later in the season, as later in the season I will expect more than usual heat and less than usual moisture over a great part of North America. I do not expect 1931 to be a repetition of 1930 crop season, as extremes will not be so great, entire season will be more moderate, dry areas will not cover the same spots, in fact, each season is different from every other season in some respects, and I do not believe that any crop-season cycle can be applied with success. I still forecast that in the next few years, while flood relief will be little needed to prevent flood damage, as total precipitation in the continent will remain below normal.

Several Hundred New Borrowers At Public Library

Miss Alice Sterling, librarian, announces that last month 394 borrowers were added to the local free public library, making a grand total of 12,767. Of the total borrowers, 7,412 are enrolled in the adult department and 5,375 in the juvenile department.

Many Ministers Share Program

Rev. Sam Maitland Observes
28th Annual Spiritual Birthday

DR. WILSON MAKES
BRIEF ADDRESS

For the twenty eighth time in as many years January 16 marked the celebration of a birthday that is unique in that it marks "The New Birth" of a man, Rev. Sam Maitland, pastor of Greenwood Methodist church and each year he invites his friends to share in the observance of the day.

At one o'clock the assemblage, which consisted of ministers, laymen and friends from every walk of life, sat down to a splendid chicken dinner, served by the ladies of Greenwood Methodist church in the dining room of the edifice.

Dr. E. A. Crooks presided at the meeting and acted in the capacity of toastmaster. He introduced Rev. T. Williams, pastor of the First Congregational church, who with a chorus of twelve voices from his congregation gave the musical numbers throughout the afternoon, with a solo by Evan Hopkins as a feature.

Dr. Charles B. Wingerd, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, asked the invocation and during the dinner hour short talks were given by Rev. P. E. Stough, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church; Rev. J. Ruggiero of the Italian Methodist church; Rev. J. Funkhouser of Emanuel Evangelical church; Rev. V. L. Blumquist of Savannah M. E. church; Dr. J. S. Stewart, a retired minister; Rev. W. C. Henderson of Moravia; Dr. Charles B. Wingerd of Central Presbyterian church; Rev. D. D. Sleppy of Mahoningtown; Rev. Johnson of Center United Presbyterian church; Rev. C. S. Joshua of Croton Avenue Methodist church; Rev. S. L. Cobb of Harmony Baptist church and Mrs. C. G. Farr, who spoke on behalf of the women present.

Dr. C. G. Farr, district superintendent of New Castle district of the Methodist churches of Erie conference introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, a nationally known figure. Dr. Wilson expressed his happiness at being present on such an auspicious occasion and said when he had received an invitation to participate in the affair of Friday, he accepted for two reasons: first on account of his warm personal friendship with Rev. Maitland and secondly, because he thought if a man was so proud of his spiritual birth that he would celebrate it year after year, it was an event which warranted his presence.

He addressed the assemblage on "Loyalty" and stated that the church and the people of the church had wandered away from the vital and fundamental doctrines of Christian Faith, this being caused by materialism gaining such a strong hold on the world. He further stressed the fact that we should turn back to these truths and when we did the kingdom of God would be nearer than it has ever been before.

His address was enthusiastically received by the guests, and at the close Dr. C. G. Farr pronounced the benediction and another celebration had been added to Rev. Sam Maitland's long list of pleasant memories.

Sheep Hill Dog Owners Warned

Constable Mee To Press
Charges Against Owners Of Animals With 1930
Licenses

Until Monday morning is the time extended to Sheep Hill dog owners to secure 1931 dog licenses. Constable A. J. Mee of that district announced Friday. The constable said numerous dogs with 1930 licenses abound in the Sheep Hill district.

A fine of from $5 to $25 is the penalty for owners who have failed to obtain the new license from the county treasurer's office.

Although the Sheep Hill constable extended the time for the last appearance of the 1930 tags, owners of dogs were required to provide their pets with new license tags on January 15, according to the county treasurer.

On Thursday, the final day, less than 3,000 tags had been issued for 1931 by the treasurer's office. It is believed that there are over 6,000 dogs in the county, making only half of them provided with the proper tags.

ABE MARTIN

On The Place Called Home

BE IT EVER SO FAR REMOVED FROM A MOVIE THEATRE THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

"Home, Sweet Home" wuz written by John Howard Payne an' wuz first sung in London in 1823. Ther hain't no records t' show whether Payne made twenty-eight or thirty dollars out o' th' song, but it is known that he died homeless an' an actor. While ever singer worthy o' th' name has rendered "Home, Sweet Home" time an' again durin' th' last hundred years th' song's greatest popularity has allus been amongst French harp, or mouth organ players. Even in these hard-fisted, cold-nosed days, th' beautiful song, when even half way put over, never fails t' raise a lump in th' throats o' people who own as many as three cars. Even apartment bred people, an' members o' large, snarlin' families are softened by th' touchin' words an' sweet, soft melody o' th' dear ole song, but th' most chokin' up is done by a tired, disappointed an' unhappy consumer. Th' song wafts ther memories 'way back thro' th' mists o' years t' th' time when they really had a home. But we guess most ever-buddy has some sort of a lean-to they call home—at least it seems home after they git t' sleep an' fer-git all th' torments an' vicissitudes o' life. Some people are gettin' too great fer homes, some have two or three homes, an' some folks believe ther's more profitable ways o' spendin' money than tyin' it up in a home. Another peculiar thing about "Home, Sweet Home" is that it appeals t' people that are never at home. Even folks that have only got ther homes half paid fer shiver with emotion when a planner strikes 'em "Home, Sweet Home." Th' word "home" is th' sweetest in th' English language. "I love you" is purty sweet, but it's several words put t'gether, an' while it often has a whole lot t' do with a real home, it's been known t' rub off an' is not allus reliable. How grand it used t' be t' git home from school, an' how good we feel after gettin' home from a circus. Jest think how a marathon dancer must feel after she gits home an' away from th' din o' saxophones an' cheerin' an' soaks her feet an' curls up in bed. Who has not sighed t' git home while sittin' thro' an intellectual treat? How many times have we come home late at night from even a "musical" show an' said, "I want some one t' shoot me if I ever leave home again," maybe th' ole home hain't what it used t' be, but jest th' same it's th' one place where rest an' peace is most likely t' be found. After th' band quits playin', after th' dancin' an' gossipin' an' bare-backed women, an' card playin' an' drinkin', after th' sight seein' an' wonderin'—then comes home. In all th' world ther's no substitute fer home—nothing jest as good. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

Plan For National "Round-up" Of Former Scouts And Scouters

Boy Scout leaders here today told to some degree the significance that "Boy Scout Anniversary Week" February 8 to 14, will have the nation over, as well as locally. Celebration plans are the most elaborate ever attempted for any previous jubilee. The 21st birthday of scouting falls on February 8 and the celebration continues for that entire week. In the 21 years more than 5,000,000 boys and men have been identified with the scout movement and an effort will be made to contact with all who are alive.

At the end of November the total membership of Boy Scouts and Scouters was 836,395, or about one-sixth of the total strength of the organization since its beginning. It is planned here, as in other places, to establish a station where former scouts and scouters may record their previous connection with the Boy Scout movement. Boy Scouts are to assist in making this record.

To Deplet Growth
Another feature, leaders here related, will be the groups of 21 scouts and in some instances groups of 21 scout leaders, who will call upon governors of states and mayors of important cities to draw attention to the progress and growth of scouting in the particular community and to accept calls for civic service.

Many cities are going so far as to plan an elaborate birthday cake ceremony with 21 candles, on exhibition prior to "Anniversary Week" will be cut at a scout banquet, Friday the 13th has been set as the day for camp reunion dinner both in New Castle and Ellwood City.

Sunday February 8 will be "Church Day," Monday, February 9 "School Day," Tuesday, February 10, "Parent Institution Day," (Lincoln's birthday) "Citizen's Day," Friday, February 13, "Camp Reunion Day," and Saturday, February 14 "Outdoor Day."

Big Gain Shown
By Credit Bureau
During December

Plans Are Being Made For Meeting Of Membership
Early In February

Report of Manager Ray F. Hall of the New Castle Credit Bureau, which was submitted to the board of directors at their meeting in the bureau rooms last evening, showed a gain of 25 members during the past month.

This is one of the biggest gains for a similar period which has been noted for some time, particularly since the organization of the bureau four years ago.

There were 11 of the 15 directors present and a number of important matters were discussed. Plans were made for a meeting of the membership during the early part of February, when it is hoped to have James E. Hayes, manager of the Harrisburg Credit bureau present for an address.

Mr. Hayes assisted in the formation of the local credit bureau four years ago, and is well known to many of the members of the organization.

Doctors' Studies Show Water And Soil Affect Thyroid Gland Action

Prevention Of Goiter Possible In Those Forms Which Occur In Iodine-Poor Regions, Says
Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Prevention of goiter is possible in those forms which occur in iodine-poor regions.

An extremely accurate analysis of water and soil from all parts of the United States has been made by McClelland and Williams, in Washington and Oregon goiter occurs in 15 to 30 persons per thousand of population. The amount of iodine in the native water in these regions is a part per billion gallons. Along the Atlantic seaboard the southern states goiter occurs in only one person per thousand population, and the proportion of iodine in the native waters of these regions is 3 to 20 per billion gallons. In the middle regions goiter incidence is 5 to 15, and iodine is present in 2 to 9 parts per billion.

You see the rate of occurrence of goiter rises directly with the decrease of iodine in the water. "Vegetables and grain contain from 100 to 1000 times more iodine in goiter-free sections than in the Lake Superior region, where goiter is endemic. McClelland estimates from the amount of iodine in the water and common foods in goitrous districts that it would require 10 years for a normal adult to accumulate 40 mg. from these natural sources. This is the average amount Marine found in normal adult thyroid. (McClelland.)

Two Cleveland physicians, Marine and Kimball, carried out extensive studies on the addition of iodine to the diet in the highly goitrous region where they live. In Akron, O., 2,190 school children were given iodine. A comparative group of 2,305 school children were allowed to go on their normal diet, without iodine added. All the children were normal at the time the experiment was begun. After a period of several years the group of children who had iodine added to the diet showed only two-tenths of one per cent of individuals with goiter. In the group which did not get iodine 27 per cent had goiter.

In children with slightly enlarged thyroids over half (57.8 per cent) had a decrease in the size of the gland at the end of a year of iodine feeding.

The amount of iodine needed is very small. The salt of iodine used is sodium iodide. Three grains are given daily for ten consecutive days, twice a year, spring and fall. In other words, 30 grains twice a year is sufficient to prevent the development of goiter in goitrous regions. So effective is the treatment considered that in Switzerland where 100 per cent of the school children are goitrous, administration of iodine to school children is a compulsory health measure.

Caution should be used in the indiscriminate and excessive use of iodine for this purpose, however. Too much may light up a slumbering thyroid and start it into activity.

The indiscriminate use of iodized salt (iodine added to table salt) cannot be recommended. When iodine is incorporated in table salt it should not be more than one part of sodium iodide to 5,000 parts of table salt. In Wexford county, Michigan, iodized salt was introduced in 1925; within 18 months the incidence of goiter had decreased 25 per cent.

Application Can Be Made Now For Training Camps

Blanks Are Now In The Hands
Of Major W. Fulton
Jackson

Major W. Fulton Jackson, who is in charge of the Citizens Military Training Camp work in the Lawrence County district, who wish to spend a thirty day period in one of the numerous training camps of the country, receiving training along military lines, while having a really enjoyable time.

He has received supply of these application blanks and those interested and desiring to get the same can do so by calling at his office, North Mercer and North streets. As the quota of the district is limited and there were a number in excess of the quota, who made application last year for the privilege of spending thirty days in one of the camps of the corps area, it is wise for those desiring to take up the work this summer, to secure their application blanks without further delay.

Indications are that the number of applicants this year will again exceed the number of places available for the district.

Prevention of goiter is possible in those forms which occur in iodine-poor regions.

An extremely accurate analysis of water and soil from all parts of the United States has been made by McClelland and Williams, in Washington and Oregon goiter occurs in 15 to 30 persons per thousand of population. The amount of iodine in the native water in these regions is a part per billion gallons. Along the Atlantic seaboard the southern states goiter occurs in only one person per thousand population, and the proportion of iodine in the native waters of these regions is 3 to 20 per billion gallons. In the middle regions goiter incidence is 5 to 15, and iodine is present in 2 to 9 parts per billion.

You see the rate of occurrence of goiter rises directly with the decrease of iodine in the water. "Vegetables and grain contain from 100 to 1000 times more iodine in goiter-free sections than in the Lake Superior region, where goiter is endemic. NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Preparing emergency accommodations for fantastic pets is one of the daily jobs of the Head Man at every first class hotel in Tammany Town. Out of every 400 guests according to our friend the statistician, one shows up with a lion cub, a flock of fancy fish, a baby alligator, a coyote or a black bear cub. Cats and dogs, of course, don't count. There are almost as many of them as there are guests.

It's an exacting job cooking for these birds and beasts. A lad shows up with an emu or something like that and the "bloomin'" thing can't stare to death just because it happens to be en tour. So the chef has to rustle around, call up the zoo and find out what an emu's style of feed is, and then provide it.

Ordinarily the lovers of bizarre pets bring their own menus and recipes—but it's the hotel's job to be prepared for any such emergency. That's what makes the average hotel director's disposition in off hours—resemble the outer edge of a buzz saw.

Einstein Speaks In California To Noted Scientists

Professor Albert Einstein, Pays Glowing Tribute To American Scientists

RADIO HOOKUP
CARRIES MESSAGE

(International News Service)
PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 17.—The scientific world rang Friday with echoes of a meeting of cosmic minds.
Albert Einstein of Germany spoke his thanks to the American geniuses Dr. William W. Campbell, astronomer and President Emeritus of the University of California, Dr. Albert
A. Michelson, formerly of Chicago
University, and Dr. Charles E. St.
John of Mt. Wilson observatory, for the proof they had made of his theory of relativity.

This symposium took place in the Colossal Athenaeum, a retreat which wealthy men have built on the campus of California Institute of Technology for the scientists of the world.

Heard Our Radio
Introduced by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, faculty head at Cal. Tech.
Einstein spoke, and his words were broadcast to American radio listeners. Professor Einstein said:

"My dear friends,
"From far away I have come to you, but not to strangers. I have come among men who for many years have been true comrades with me in my labors.

"You, my honored Dr. Michelson, began with this work when I was only a little youngster, hardly three feet high. It was you who led the physicists into new paths, and through your marvelous experimental work paved the way for the development of the theory of relativity.

"You uncovered and insidious defect in the ether theory of light, as it then existed, and stimulated the ideas of H. A. Lorentz and Fritz-gerald, out of which the special theory of relativity developed. These in turn pointed the way to the general theory of relativity, and to the theory of gravitation. Without your work this theory would today be scarcely more than an interesting speculation; it was your verifications which first set the theory on a real basis.

"Campbell's determination of the bending of rays of light coming past the sun, St. John's determination of the red shift of spectral lines due to the gravitational potential existing at the surface of the sun;
Adams' determination of the red shift in the light which comes to us from the companion of Sirius, these provide the best support for the general theory of relativity.

OF NEW CASTLE

Fifty-five out of 62 attended drill in the armory Friday evening. The schedule consisted of drills to be held during the next inspection on January 23.

Privates Veon and Lanigan were adjudged best-dressed soldiers at the drill. These guardsmen won the honor before.

Maj. W. Fulton Jackson, Lieut. J.
L. Reed and Lieut. Kennedy, all of the reserve corps, were present in the armory Friday.

Plans are being made to start a troop dance orchestra. Leaders in the movement are the troop's buglers, Privates J. A. Foster and Frank Edgar. Any one who can play an instrument is urged to get in touch with the buglers.

Next week will be filled with activity for the troop. Non com school will be held on Monday and Thursday evenings. Quarterly inspection will be held on Friday night. Troop officers journey to a conference in Lewisburg on Satur-

Friday's drill was attended by three former staff sergeants: Mit-

Merle E. E. Thorne.

Bessemer High School Notes

Noon basketball games between the various classes have begun. The schedule is arranged the same as that of volleyball. The grades from 10-12 comprising the group A, and from 7-9, the group B.

On January 13 the Boys Basketball team tasted defeat for the first time at Ellwood City. They came back with their slate marred with a score of 17-14.

Friday evening, January 16, the boys and girls basketball teams will go to Shenango to play the teams of that school. Both of the home teams have high hopes of chalking up another victory.

The schedule of volleyball games at noon has been completed, and in-terclass basketball has commenced.

The teachers are beginning to prepare the first semester examinations. These tests will be given on January 26, 27, and 28. Pupils having an average of "S" or above and with no illegal absences, will be exempt.

A larger hot water tank has been installed in the school. Prior to this time there was only a very small tank which did not furnish an ample supply of hot water for all necessities. Shower facilities have thus been enlarged.

Wesley Harriger, a freshman, was badly burned about the face and hands last Friday when gas crested in the furnace blew open the door and threw out flames. Harriger had gone to the basement to secure a bucket with which to perform an experiment in science class. The bucket contained a harmless looking substance which he threw into the fire. An explosion followed, blowing open the furnace door and burning Harriger about the face and hands. Medical attention was given as soon as a doctor could be reached.

On Friday, January 9, Prof. Colton was in charge of the assembly program. It was a rather unusual program in that he had a speaker from Mesopotamia, who spoke to the high school and part of the grades concerning his native land and tribe life. He devoted the latter part of the program to answering questions concerning his country.

Mr. Winters will be in charge of the assembly program for this week.
His program will be as follows:

Violin solo—Pentti Holland.
Violin solo—George Peltio.
Saxophone solo—Joe Polis.
Vocal solo—June Shoup.
Piano solo—Frances Griffin.

Original paper—Kenneth Nelson.
Prof. Colton has purchased for the school two sets of reference books which will be placed in the study hall. One set, consisting of nine volumes, deals with world history, the other containing ten volumes, is an encyclopedia of United States history.

TUESDAY'S ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 17.—
Insofar as savings accounts in all

Benjamin J. Thomas, R. D. No. 1, believes that he is justified in claiming that he is the owner of the champion egg laying hens of the county.

He is the proud owner of 54 white Leghorn hens, which hens in the month of December, 1930, laid a total of 1,422 eggs. This is an average of 26 and three-fourths eggs per hen per month, and if there is a better record in Lawrence county
he would like to hear of it.

IMPORTANT—Watch your birds. Heavily laying birds that become thin are reaching the breaking point. Increase their grain. Birds that are fat and producing only lightly are getting too much grain.
Reducing grain will automatically increase their consumption of mash and this will result in more eggs
—see Conkey's Poultry Book, pages 33 to 37.

WITH OR WITHOUT Y-O Already Mixed In—

Conkey's Gecco Egg Mash can be obtained either with or without Conkey's Y-O YO is a smooth brown powder in which Marmite yeast and cod liver oil are combined by a special sealing process whereby vitamins A, B and D retain their potency over a long period of time.

The need of vitamins for poultry is now well recognized. They aid the digestive organs to more completely break down and assimilate all the digestible nutrients in the food —especially the minerals—and are particularly helpful for heavier egg production, stronger fertility and greater hatchability of the eggs. There is always more or less uncertainty as to the vitamin content of cereal feeds which form the basis of all poultry rations.
These feeds may have some of the vitamins but rarely do they have all of them in amounts equal to the needs of the fowls. So, when you feed Conkey's "Gecco Egg Mash with Y-O" you know for a certainty you are getting plenty of vitamins in the ration, in addition to the best known combination of feeds.

Commencement Is Very Successful

Address "Where Do We Go From Here" Contains Many Valuable Hints To Grads Friday

Valedictory And Salutatory Addresses Well Given At Mid-Year Commencement

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 17.—The Commencement exercises of the 1931 mid-year graduating class, the first of such to take place in the new auditorium, was an event of Friday evening in the Lincoln school.

The sixty-five seniors made a memorable picture grouped to receive their diplomas from the hands of H. E. Helling, president of the Ellwood City Board of Education. The entire auditorium was packed with relatives and friends of the graduates to witness the final formality attendant upon the matriculation of the class into the outer world. Many of the seniors plan to go to colleges next fall, others plan to start on their life's work.

Whatever the plans in the minds of the respective graduates, the address by James Mace, prominent speaker from Pittsburgh, gave them plenty of food for thought. His theme "Where do we go from here" was well worked out, and contained some valuable hints gathered from the speakers own store of vast experience in the battle of life which beset man's progress through life. He stated succinctly that where the graduates went from here was entirely up to them and the more preparation they allowed themselves, the farther their journey ultimately would extend.

The balance of the program was featured by the Salutatory address "Why Stop Learning" by Miss Margaret Bellora, which was well given and greatly enjoyed and the Valedictory address by Miss Frances Hayden entitled "We Finish to Begin." The program in detail follows:

Prelude—"Greig Suite" No. 1-5 Greig, orchestra.

Big Contribution To Davis-Brown Ticket Revealed
Walter A. Bonitz, Wealthy Pennsylvania Brick Manufacturer Gave $90,000

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A $90,000 contribution by Walter A. Bonitz, wealthy Pennsylvania brick manufacturer, the Davis-Brown campaign in that state last summer was made because Bonitz "interest was purely philosophical," the New Senatorial campaign committee was told today.

After one witness, Vincent R. Smith of Greensburg, Pa., appeared the committee adjourned its inquiry into the campaign of Senator James J. Davis (R) of Pennsylvania, until next Thursday.

Smith, co-manager with county Judge Charles B. Copeland, of the Davis-Brown campaign in Westmoreland, Fayette, Green and Washington counties, testified that in two of the counties, no money was spent because "money did not cut such a figure." The counties were Westmoreland and Green.

Freedom Sought For Four Held In Girl's Death

Attorney For Four Men Held In Washington Girl's Death Ask For Bonds

ALL DENY FACTS IN MURDER CASE
(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Attorneys for the four men, including a brother and a policeman, held in jail for grand jury action in connection with the murder December 31 of Miss Beulah Limerick 19, threatened today to institute habeas corpus proceedings for their release unless the district attorney grants them freedom under bond.

The lawyers said they would not resort to court action of the grand jury acts immediately and decide whether the four have "guilty knowledge" of the killing which a coroner's jury said they have.

All Deny Crime
Miss Limerick was found shot to death on her cot in the first floor front room of her home. Someone had cleared away the blood and concealed the wound with her hair before calling a physician. The hole was not found until the body was turned over to an undertaker.

Those held are Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, the officer in the neighborhood the girl lived with her brother, Vernon; Richard Reed, a boarder at their home, William E. Paddy, an acquaintance of Miss Limerick, and Vernon, the brother.

All deny they know who committed the crime. Limerick and Reed were in the house but did not hear the pistol shot, they said. Paddy had escorted Miss Limerick home from a dance the morning of the killing but said he knows nothing about what happened later. Langdon said he would give no information although he admitted peering into Miss Limerick's bedroom twice the night of the killing.

Dullest Saturday Session Of Year In Market Today
Narrowest Of Price Ranges In Today's Dull And Sluggish Market

W. S. COUSINS
Financial Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Industrial stocks and utilities dropped off rather sharply near the close of the dull Saturday session of the year today, after nearly two hours of churning around in the narrowest of price ranges.

Stock sales on the big board totaled about 650,000 shares, of which nearly 250,000 changed hands in the last fifteen minutes.

This is the duller half-session since August 2, when 366,000 shares were turned over. According to the Dow Jones estimates, the rail stocks lost 23 cents and the industrials were down nearly 2 points.

California Heavyweight Wins New York Bout By Knockout—Dempsey Is Sorry

AUSTRALIAN IS GIVEN SHORT COUNT

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Five, six, seven, eight—

Jack Dempsey, referee, counting, and then a dramatic pause, a nerve-racking moment or two of excitement and utmost confusion, and—

"You're out!"

The winner: Max Baer, of California. The loser, Honest Tom Heeney of New Zealand, up from the floor and ready to continue the fight—his rugged countenance creased with lines of bewilderment.

Thus, under the blazing lights in the ring at Madison Square Garden last night, dramatically ended the Baer-Heeney fiasco in the third round of what was scheduled as a ten round bout.

As Heeney expressed it today: "In Chicago they give you a long count; in New York they give you a short count."

Dempsey Is Sorry
Heeney insists he was counted out at "eight."

Dempsey felt pretty bad about it himself this morning but he insisted he did the right thing under the circumstances. And practically all the experts at the ringside agree with him. It just happened that once again in a Madison Square ring Dempsey was put in a tough spot.

The trouble was the timekeepers got their signals crossed. One timekeeper was two seconds behind the other. Dempsey was counting in unison with the timekeeper who was behind—the only timekeeper who was making an audible count.

Amateur Just Year Ago, Don George Now Outstanding Grappler

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Cartoonist-Writer

Tossing timbers and lumber jacks around in a logging camp gave Ed Don George, now one of the first-ranking heavyweight grapplers, an idea. The idea was that he could make a go at wrestling. And the idea has worked. Plenty!

After two years of knocking about the country George entered the University of Michigan and it wasn't long before his wrestling ability made itself evident. He won the Michigan state wrestling title four times, the national amateur title twice and was finalist in the Olympic tournament at Amsterdam in 1928.

About a year ago George was working in a Buffalo tire factory, doing plenty of heavy work and dreaming about the coin professional stars were reported raking in. A talk with Jack Albright, an old-time grappler, convinced the youth that he could make a success of it, and so he turned professional. He won his first professional match in 20 seconds. His second bout was won in 50 seconds, his third in two minutes and his fourth in five minutes. He wrestled in and around Boston 33 times and won every match.

"The American," says a visiting European, "doesn't realize what a dictatorship means." He does if he has a two-year-old kid in the house.

Another reason why it isn't nice to talk about the weather is because you can't do it right without making people think you are a mule driver.

"Lose heart because we haven't been winning?" says Benny. "Say just watch these kids in a season or two. This team is young and is taking the bumps plenty, but every licking is like going to school. The boys come out of a defeat bruised but with a little more hockey knowledge tucked away."

Spying On Sports

by BILL RITT

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor

Hockey has produced another candidate for the Hall of Near-Fame. Among the eternal sparring partners of the sport world must be named the Philadelphia Quakers.

Along with Sir Thomas Lipton and the St. Louis Browns, the Quakers seemed doomed to ride the rumble seat. But whereas Sir Tom and the Browns have a number of times come within a hair's breath of triumph, the Quakers have never been close.

Born as the Pittsburgh Pirates this major league hockey club wrote such a sad serial of defeat that Smoky City fans failed to remain even mildly interested in their maneuvers.

Last season the Pirates won nine times, tied in eight games and lost 27 for a point total of 26.

Move to Philadelphia
Something had to be done about it. The Pirates were rapidly getting no better and attendance was too meager to warrant purchase of several outstanding stars to bolster the outfit.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia as third largest city in these United States was crying for big league hockey, so the club was transferred to the Quakertown, and its name changed.

If possible the Quakers are enjoying less success this year than they did under the smoky veil of Pittsburgh. As this was written the Quakers had won two and tied one out of 22 games played for a total pointage of five. And that was 16 points, or eight full victories below the next team, the Detroit Falcons.

No wonder rumors have been flying about that the Quakers would soon be known as the Indians of Cleveland, a town that has been fairly frothing at the mouth for a taste of the major league ice game!

Chicago Spurt
What makes the sorrow of the Philadelphians in hockey matters all the deeper is the great change in the play of the Chicago Black Hawks.

Last year the Black Hawks finished last in the American division of the big league, below even the Pirates.

Today the Hawks with the second best showing in the league are pounding at the door of a hockey title. Only the fine Boston Bruins top the Chicago and the Bruins have outclassed all teams in either division so far. Even Montreal's Les Canadiens at this writing have not made the showing the Black Hawks have.

Victory Luncheon Marks Another Year

Over Two Hundred Persons
Sit Down To Luncheon
In First Baptist Church

Dr. J. Alvin Orr, Dr. Clarence True Wilson And Walter Braham,
Speakers

Another year has passed and another goal marked in the success of prohibition in the United States, and the day was fittingly celebrated Friday afternoon by the Lawrence county W. C. T. U. in the nature of a luncheon with speakers of national fame addressing the two hundred persons who had assembled to observe the day at the First Baptist church.

The orchestra, led by Elizabeth Brewster, furnished the pre-luncheon music, as well as numbers throughout the serving of a delicious chicken dinner by the ladies of the Baptist church. Mrs. Joe Replogle led in the pep singing and incited the assembly into enthusiastically joining in the singing of the W. C. T. U. songs, set to familiar tunes.

The speakers' table was centered with a mass of white roses, tied with white ribbon, the symbol of the W. C. T. U., and small American flags were used down the center of the tables and small flags marked each place. A number of distinguished guests were seated at the speakers' table, including the officers of the county organization, judges, senators, representatives, attorneys and ministers of prominence.

Miss Walker, county chairman, read a greeting from Mrs. E. J. Pattison, aged 92, the oldest past president of the organization, who was unable to attend on account of her age, but Mrs. S. E. McCleary, aged 87, past president, was able to attend and was greeted by the members.

Dr. Wilson Speaks
Dr. G. M. Landis, pastor of the host church, invoked the divine blessing and Miss Walker introduced Dr. Clarence J. True Wilson, of Washington, D. C., who greeted the assembly and congratulated the W. C. T. U. on the splendid work they have done and said that 11 years have now elapsed and there has been no jarring of the legislation from its original position, and the future has been made almost certain for the 18th amendment to remain in its place in the Constitution.

DR. J. ALVIN ORR

W. W. BRAHAM

A great gain was made this year when the head of the nation and the state are men of "dry" tendencies and men who will give up their party affiliations rather than place themselves on the "wet" side, he said. The country has never been in such capable hands, Dr. Wilson stated, and he predicts that as enforcement is entrenched in the minds and the hearts of the people and in the laws of the United States, no inroads can be made on the situation as it stands today.

Dr. J. Alvin Orr Talks

Miss Walker introduced the next speaker of the afternoon at the close of the dinner, in the person of Dr. J. Alvin Orr, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church of northside, Pittsburgh, who is preaching all this week in the Third United Presbyterian church of the city.

Dr. Orr stated that it was a privilege and an honor to address this gathering and join in the 11th annual celebration of an event that had meant so much to the United States. He told of his first personal experience in impressing on his mind the cause of prohibition, which had been given him by his mother, and stated that prohibition is the issue in the center of the minds of United States citizens to more tremendous import than did the question of slavery in the time of our forefathers, and we should feel no disappointment if the question is not settled at once, as the years slowly bring more and more success, and not only will the success of this question in the United States be felt by our nation alone, but the nations of the world are watching with anxiety to see what the outcome is here. He told how the coffers of other nations are being flooded by money from the wet organizations to keep them on the "wet" side.

Propaganda Big Issue

"It is with anxiety and trepidation that the question is discussed by folks today, and these half formed opinions are causing hesitancy and half heartedness in the work. We should not be misled by propaganda which is issued by those backing the 'wet' issues as put forth in the magazines and papers controlled by these interests," Dr. Orr stated.

False statements have been made from time to time as regards the "foisting" of prohibition upon the country while we were enmeshed in the World War and 2 million of our young voters were out of the country, but Dr. Orr showed most clearly how prohibition had been well on its way long before the World War started, but the conditions caused by liquor in all countries during this time of stress, hastened the action in the United States. He gave figures showing that it was the will of the majority of states and counties in the United States long before the law was enacted into the Constitution and many of the states had made laws in their territory long before it was thought of as a national issue.

Some Obstacles

Dr. Orr brought forth the obstacles which will have to be overcome before prohibition can reach the ideal stage; these being the "rum runners" and rum rows conducted along the borders of the United States and along the ocean coasts; then the moonshine makers, the bootleggers and the patrons of the bootleggers must be eliminated; and the chain of newspapers owned by the anti-prohibitionists, disseminating the story of these being the "stay at home" voters gotten out on election day and the education of the children in our schools must not be neglected as to the detriment of alcohol to the physical system.

It has been shown, he further stated, that bank accounts of a saving nature have been increased since prohibition has been in effect, the number of homes built by the laboring class has been increased 107 percent in the ten years since the law was made.

As to the question of drinking among the young people, that is greatly exaggerated by those wishing to do harm to the issue. Prof. Charles Clark of Yale university was quoted as saying that since prohibition the discipline in their school has been materially helped, they do not have the disorder and drunkenness they had when the liquor could be had most any place.

He ended by urging the W. C. T. U. to "Pray On, To Fight On, To Educate On and To Agitate On," until the day would come when the ideal prohibition stage would be reached and with the leadership of Christ this can be accomplished.

Attorney Braham Introduced
Attorney Walter W. Braham, a local attorney was the closing speaker on the program and his subject was "Where Are We" and as he arose he said no prohibition summary could excel that given by Dr. Orr.

Mr. Braham stated that the eloquent, heartening words that had issued from Dr. Orr's mouth warmed the hearts of those present, who were interested vitally in this question, but outside the four walls which enclosed the assemblage, there were others, and many of them who did not feel the same way about the question and these things should be considered seriously by those on the "dry" side.

"Liquor is an evil that takes the food out of the mouths of families," Mr. Braham stated and this fact being well known to all, the "wets" use the argument in favor of their side, they pervert the evils caused by liquor to the wrong side of the fence, saying it is the result of prohibition and not the liquor itself. The evil exists but it is not because the law has been prohibited, but in a skillful, adroit and progressive manner the propagandists turn these facts to suit their side of the question.

These on the side of prohibition have let go of one of their most effective weapons, when the education of our coming generation is neglected along the lines of the evils of liquor. Of course the child of today can not learn by the experiences such as our forefathers had, as the same conditions do not exist, but nevertheless it is important that the facts be impressed upon their minds; we must begin at the bottom and teach the fundamentals underlying the evils caused by this traffic, so they will understand how to act in the future when the issue is brought to their attention.

Our nation today is in safe hands, but we must guard against getting men at the heads of the courts and law making bodies that will go backward instead of forward and here is where the W. C. T. U. and kindred organizations have their work mapped out, they cannot lay down on the job now, but must see to it that the right men are in the right positions to make the cause invulnerable. He stated how acts had been introduced, which if passed would take the authority from the local judges and pass it into federal hands and this, in his opinion, would be a bad thing for the country. In attorney Braham's estimation, if we have good, competent, honest constables and police officers in the counties, then the bigger questions will be competently handled.

The standard has been raised now, and Mr. Braham urged the people to keep the high ideals they have set. The standard has been raised to which the wise, just and the good can repair; it is written into the law of the land. It is a man made device to limit the consumption of liquor and an educational work is ahead of everyone, and God alone can take care of the event, were Mr. Braham's closing words. Rev. Nathan McClure of Plaingrove gave the benediction which brought the event to a close.

Senator Davis Addresses Union In Philadelphia

Advocates 44-Hour Working Week And No Reduction In Salaries, For Government Men

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—A 44-hour week for government employees with no reduction in pay was advocated by U. S. Senator James J. Davis during the course of an address here at a banquet given in his honor by the Federal Employees' Union of Philadelphia.

He reiterated his former assertions that the government should introduce model working conditions and salaries as an example for other employers.

"The government's lowest wage should be generous enough," he said, "to insure a comfortable standard of living for the employee."

(International News Service)
LONDON, Jan. 17.—Cotton mills throughout Lancashire will shut down at noon today following the breakdown in negotiations between owners and weavers after a ten-hour conference, resulting in enforced idleness of nearly 250,000 workers.

Suspension of operations not only will turn the weavers out into the cold, but soon also an equal number of spinners, bringing the total number of men affected by the lay-off to half a million.

The deadlock between the weavers and owners sprang from the desire of the latter to have each man tend to eight instead of four looms.

In the meanwhile the coal miners of South Wales voted to accept terms reached by their delegates with mine owners, thus ending a dispute which lasted two weeks. Consequently, 149,000 miners will return to work Monday.

Warren Home Is Under Padlock

WARREN, O., Jan. 17.—Bright and new, the government's first padlocked Warren home from the sealed doors of the premises at 520 South Park avenue.

United States Marshal Beck, of Youngstown, closed and padlocked the doors, posted the government placards above, and left residents here the first sample of the federal handiwork.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations
Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Up around The Castleton lobby the other afternoon the guests got an eyeful of "Jack Sharkey," the Boston Gob, the lad who fouled Max Schmeling into the world's championship of the heavyweight division.

Nobody could figure why he was in New Castle, but there he was, tall and broad and apparently ready for the ring at the drop of the hat, providing you aren't collegiate, and don't wear a hat. As he passed through the lobby there was a lot of whispering and craning of necks, but the big boy never noticed it.

Which is not remarkable for it wasn't Jack Sharkey. Not even his brother. It was a lad by the name of Charles Fox, a mid-western salesman who looks enough like Sharkey to pass for him any time. He was looking for the motor club, the manager B. N. Hanlon and he being old friends.

These travel agencies are a tenacious lot anyway. They still insist upon sending highly colored pamphlets describing trips to Bermuda, the Mediterranean, the New York-California via Panama trip, and a host of others.

Lovely pamphlets they are, written by some hopeful optimist, and colored by an artist who wore colored glasses. You almost feel your self there, but the price brings you back with a chilly start. And they don't mention anything about what to use for money.

If you really are looking for something more than ordinarily exciting tonight, take a ride up to New Wilmington and see the Westminster-Allegheny basketball game. Allegheny was supposed to be one of the fastest teams in the district this year. Grove City defeated them last night and Westminster nosed out Grove City a few nights ago. Both of which factors give each side a real reason for winning tonight.

Now that Senator Nye has another $50,000 of public money to continue his snooping, perhaps we'll get some real dirt. Somehow I can't seem to get the idea that those old Revolutionary fathers ever had the idea of such tactics as those of the Nye committee. The smaller states were given two senators as a compromise merely to assure them of a square deal. But the square deal should work both ways.

Work Provided For Grove City's Idle

Task Of Cleaning Up Memorial Park And Removing Trees Started

GROVE CITY, Jan. 17.—Twelve idle men were put to work Wednesday at Memorial Park by the park committee and the work of removing many of the trees as pointed out by a state forester a few days ago was started.

The work is in charge of John Bonnett and Mr. Braine, who are two well known woodmen.

This is the result of the recent action of the boro council when an appropriation of $500 was made to take care of this work and aid the unemployed in this city.

IN HARRISBURG

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McKay of West Main street left Wednesday for Harrisburg where Mr. McKay will attend the sessions of the State Assembly within a few days. Mr. and Mrs. McKay have procured an apartment at the State Capitol and will make their home in that city during the assembly sessions.

Blacksmith Seeks $10,000 Damages

Brick Flies Through Window,

On Blacksmith's Foot

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17.—Common pleas court observers are puzzling today over a new twist to the ever-recurring cause-and-effect problem furnished through the suit filed by William O'Brien, blacksmith, for $5,420 due to lost time and doctor bills and $5,000 for personal injuries.

Summarized, the allegations of O'Brien are:
O'Brien (A) was working at a smithy (B) on July 8 last. On a vacant lot (C) about 25 feet away stood a three-story building (D). Austin Givens (E), named as the defendant, was a contractor engaged in tearing down the building (D) when one of his workmen (F) allowed a brick to fly through a window (G) in the blacksmith shop (B).

The brick (H) struck a horse (I) which O'Brien (A) was shoeing. The horse (I) jumped and stepped on the left big toe (J) of the blacksmith (A), crushing the toe (J).

O'Brien says he has suffered permanent damages because his toe has become stiff, rendering him lame.
